I'm crushed.

Remember you sent me to find out what Carlene King Johnson has been doing since that summer night in 1955 when she was named Miss U.S.A.?

There is no more Carlene King Johnson. There is no more beauty queen.

But there is a Mrs. Larry H. Drake of Long Beach, housewife and part-time employe of a local women's cluthes store.

L.A.C. Says: The Major Problems

The honorable cooperation between patient, doctor and hospital is absolutely essential if health care insurance is to be successful. A different kind of cooperation is shown in an issue of the "Aircrafter," the I. M. H. union publication. It was hard for us to believe it until we read it in the official newspaper of the union. It brags about what we consider collusion to destroy sound health insurance programs.

Under the program given the union members the insurance programs pay 80 per cent of all doctor and hospital costs above the first $25 for a member. This deductible feature is common in policies. It is to protect the plan from misuse of the benefits and thereby making all programs more costly. The union, insurance company, doctors and hospitals in the plan agreed to this program.

Now we find the union telling its members that it has negotiated deals with a few hospitals and doctors whereby the 80 per cent paid by the insurance company will be accepted as full payment. There is no evidence this has occurred in the Long Beach area. But it is in full swing in the Santa Monica area and promised by the union for all its members. Is it any wonder there is so much said about our breakdown in moral ethics?

In other words, there is collusion to defraud the insurance companies by charging more than the docfor or hospital is willing to accept. It destroys the deductible feature that causes the patient to pay one fifth of his bill and therefore be more careful not to misuse the benefits. It is in effect an undercover method voiding the terms of a contract supposedly entered into in good faith by all parties concerned.

In a recent speech before insurance executives Dr. Foster, the new state president of the Medical Association, gave some objections the doctors have to insurance plans. He tells that each insurance company has its own form to be filled out by the doctor. With hundreds of companies paying claims it means doctors and their secretaries must spend hours making out separate forms and answering unnecessary letters from the companies. He asks why the companies canot agree to one standard form so much time can be saved.

He also tells of the relative fee schedule approved by the doctors. But some doctors, he says, are more experienced and capable and therefore have a right to charge higher fees than others. He says the insuring companies should not object to a variance in fees. But if they feel a fee is too high they should refer it to the medical association fair fee board for review.

This view is in opposition to the Long Beach Plan which guarantees that the fees charged will all be according to the list they provide to the insuring companies. This means that doctors in the plan accept the insurance company payment as full payment for the covered individual or 80 per cent of the fee where the deductible feature is included.

: It is these problems which are endangering all medical insurance programs. Unless the doctors, insurance companies, hospitals and patients cooperate in honorable adherence to the programs, they will fail and socialization will follow. It is apparent insurance companies must have a better understanding of the doctors problem of reporting, the doctors and hospitals must live up to the agreement made with the insuring parties and patients must not be chiselers or cooperate with chiselers.

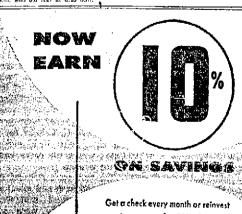

These are problems affecting virtually every family, as well as the agencies that care for their health needs. Tremendous progress toward solving catastrophic medical bills has come about the past five years. But unless these problems are solved, they are doomed to failure and bureaucracy will take over the functions now provided by free enterprise. That would be a sad and more expensive day for all who need medical care.-L.A.C.

U.S. Picket Fleet of 500 Satellites Under AF Study

tective system, involving a "flying boxcar" fleet of up to 500 sky-searching satellites, was reported under study Saturday for possible use by 1964.

Aviation Week, a space and science magazine, said the study was started under a government contract at the San Diego division of Convair, a subsidiary of General Dynamics Corp.

IT SAID THE most logical function of the satellites -which would circle the earth in polar orbits-would be to supply ground-based weapons with an early warning of an enemy ballistic missile launched from any point on the globe.

It said the "blanket-scanning" function might also he coupled with the capability to launch missiles from the satollites themselves.

"This missile-launch capability from the satellite." the magazine said, "does not lie outside the region of technical feasibility."

THE BIG QUESTION would be whether such a capability could be developed "within the time period scheduled for the operational readiness of the satellite system in mid-1964," the magazine said.

Lt. Gen. Bernard G. Schriever, chief of the Air Force Research and Development Command, has said an effective anti-missile defense system is one of the most urgently needed projects in America's defense program. Aviation Week did not say whether or how the satel-lite system might be involved with "Midas," the antimissile satellite concept envisioned by Pentagon planners.

THE REPORT said one possible satellite configuration under study by Convair is a flying boxcar shape eight feet square and 20 feet long. It would orbit in a horizontal

Each satellite would circle the earth in 94 to 98 minutes at a height of from 300 to 400 miles. Mission period for each would be targeted for three years.

The magazine said reliability requirements will demand that failure of the satellites' power systems not exceed 20 per cent per year for each three-year flight period. That means, it said, that on an average, four out of every five satellites in orbit each year would be expected to be operational.

POWER DEPENDABILITY, the magazine emphasized, is one of the most critical problems faced in such a satellite system. It said Convair is exploring and has solicited preliminary technical data on two possible avenues of solution: A radioisotope auxiliary power system and a solar energy auxiliary power system.

Byrd's First Flight to Pole Questioned by Swedish Scientist

STOCKHOLM (UPI)-A Swedish meteorlogist who is preparing a book on polar flights expressed personal doubts Saturday about a pinneer flight over the North Pole credited to Adm. Richard E. Byrd almost 34 years

The flight about which Prof. Goesta Liliequist of Upsala University raised questions was one reported made by the late American explorer on May 9, 1926.

Liljequist said his studies of weather conditions in the Arctic on that date, and various other technical data, indicated that "something is wrong" about the record.

"Byrd reported that he accomplished the flight in 15.5 hours and his plane had an average speed of some 75 knots," Liljequist said.

"THAT MEANS that he had to have a tailwind at an average of some 20 knots, meaning that it should have been a storm helping the plane one way of the route. A study of meteorlogical data from that day shows that there was fine clear wind and a high-pressure area in the Arctic that very day.

"Something is wrong and the best thing would be if an impartial commission of meteorologists, technicians and polar researchers in America made a thorough investigation," Liljequist added.

Liljcquist began studying the problem in 1956 when he started a book on pioneer Arctic and antArctic flights. He himself has taken part in polar expeditions.

In Bergen, Norway, an American expert on Arctic exploration, Norwegian-born Bernt Balchen was quoted as saying he tended to agree with Liljequist concerning the 1926 Byrd flight.

BALCHEN, WHO said he was at the Spitzbergen base from which Byrd made the flight, made the assertion in an interview with the newspaper "Bergens Tidende."

According to the newspaper, Baichen said his calculations at the time tended to support Liljequist's theory that Byrd could not have reached the pole in the short time he stayed in the air.

Norwegian experts in Oslo said that if Liljequist's theory should prove to be valid, Norwegian Arctic explorer Roald Amundsen would get credit for leading the first expedition over the pole. Amundsen went over the pole in a dirigible on May 12, 1926.

Highway Patrolmen reached R. E. Anderson, 25, of Sunny-vale, Calif., the pilot, and Delbert L. Gheen, 22, of San Jose, about noon.

Patrol Sgt. Leonard E. Wold said Anderson had an injured right leg. He was picked up by a helicopter from Hill Air Force Base, Utah, and taken back to the base for treatment.

Killed were Bruno W. Mack, his wife, Ann, 44, and the Rev. Eugene Sidney Smith, 49, and his wife, Frances, all of Chicago.

The pilot of their Beech craft Bonanza lost control of the plane in murky weather and a witness saw the craft "turning over and over" before it plunged into the long in the Kabiria Forest.

LOCATION OF PROPOSED CAUSEWAY

Long Beach and Los Angeles Harbor officials want to replace the 36-year-old bascule bridge (the low bridge, above) with a solid-fill causeway to link Terminal Island to the mainland. Subsidence has necessitated raising the bridge twice in the past 10 years, and if the present rate of sinkage continues, it will become inoperative by 1965. The larger Commodore Heim Bridge (with towers) would be retained but its lift features would be abandoned.—(Staff Photo.

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (UPI) Law officials Saturday appealed to the public for information about a portable radio missing from the home of the murdered Herbert W. Clutter family at nearby Holcomb.

Finney County Prosecutor Duane West requested radio stations and newspapers to publicize a description of the three-way, 1958 Zenith radio, apparently considered an important clue in the murders of Clutter; his wife, Bonnie 45; son, Kenyon, 15; and daughter, Nancy Mae, 16, whose bodies were found in the home Nov. 15.

THE VICTIMS had been bound and gagged. They were killed with blasts fired into their heads at close range with a heavy gauge shotgun Meanwhile, two former Kansas convicts, Perry Edward Smith, 31, Las Vegas, Nev., and Richard Eugene Hickock, 28, Johnson County. Kan., were held by Las Vegas police. Four agents of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation left Friday to return the two men to Kansas.

KBI Director Logan Sanford described them as the "best prospects" in the investigation so far, but empha-sized that "right now . . . we are checking them in connection with parole violations and bad checks."

BOTH MEN had served terms in the state prison at Lansing for burglary convic-

Sanford and West both stressed that it was not certain the radio was stolen.

"A housekeeper remem-bered it being in the house and it's not there now," Sanford said, "But it could have been gone before the kill-

It was described as mist gray with blue trim and a gold grill with the serial numgota gon ber 6102025.

SOME OFFICERS have theorized that the killer, or killers, entered the home in the belief that Clutter, a wealthy farmer who owned 1,000 acres of rich wheat land and herds of cattle and sheep, kept large amounts of money

However, Clutter was known as a man who paid even small bills by check and never showed substantial amounts of cash.

After the killings, two empty wallets were found, but an envelope containing that Nancy had planned to donate at church that day still was on her bed room table when officers , arrived.

THE TELEPHONE in Clutter's home office had been torn from the wall, along with a telephone in the kitchen, Clutter's body was found with that of his son in the basement. The bodies of Mrs. Clutter and the girl were in their beds in upstairs rooms. A coroner's examination disclosed they had not been sexually molested.

Sanford said evidence gathered so far indicates solution of the crime will make an incredible story.

"We believe the newspapers will have a surprising and fantastic story when this thing is solved," he said. "It's one of those things you dream

Driven on Reef

SINGAPORE (AP)-Courage and seamanship triumphed Saturday over whistling gales and raging seas that broke the American freighter Valley Forge on reefs of the South

The ship's agents said Saturday night all 37 men aboard were believed safe after three days of rescue operations in the angry waters about 50 miles southeast of Singapore.

A tug and a minesweeper picked up 30 of the crew. The Indonesian government said the captain, Peter F. Petrone of Absecon, N. J. "and his crew" were safe on the Indonesian island of Bintan, not far from the scene of the wreck.

Ship's agents said they believed this would account for the remaining, who abandoned ship and put out in a lifeboat Friday. A search plane spotted them earlier.

Premier of Quebec Dies

MONTREAL (AP)-Premier Paul Sauve of Quebec died Saturday at his suburban home in St. Eustache, apparently of a heart attack.

The 52-year-old premier received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church before he died.

Sauve had retired at 1 a. m. after having dinner with his family and a few friends. There was no indication he was ill.

Sauve had been in office since Sept. 10 when he succeeded the late Premier Maurice Duplessis, who died Sept. 7 of a brain hemorrhage. Survivors include his widow and three children.

'Talking Dog' Stuns Newsmen

DRIGHLINGTON, England (UPI)—Corky, the Corgi dog, who boasts "I am a clever lad," stopped talking Saturday apparently because he had nothing further to say.

But Corky can talk when he wants to. A group of cold soher newsmen attested to the fact after hearing him say his piece Friday night in the pub of his owner, Mrs. Kay

"I'm a clever lad," said Corky.

A Daily Mail reporter agreed that Corky spoke "in a gargling sort of bass." But Corky had his say with those words. Mrs. Ounsworth begged and pleaded but he remained said Corky started speaking three months ago. Bernard Bucknall, who drops into her saloon now and then, took over the job of teaching him to curl his tongue for the word "clever" and a few other phrases.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS L.A. Disc Firm, 14 More Accused Save 37 as Ship of Payola in New FTC Charges

Federal Trade Commission Saturday accused 15 record manufacturers and distributors of giving illegal "payola" to radio and television disc jockeys The charges were identical with those lodged on Dec. 3 against the Radio Corporation of America and eight other firms. In all cases the companies were alleged to have given disc jockeys money or other valuable considerations to "expose" their recordings.

THE FTC DEFINES "exposure" as playing a record day after day, sometimes as much as 6 to 10 times sales by creating the impression that it is highly popular,

"This deception," the agency charges, "tends to mislead purchasers into the 'exposed' buying records which they might not otherwise have purchased, and also to advance these recordings in popularity polls, which in turn tends to increase their sales substantially."

The agency said "these payoffs are unfair methods of competition forbidden by the FTC Act because they have the capacity to suppress competition and to divert trade unfairly from

THE RADIO Corporation of America quickly agreed to a consent order forbidding the payment of payola last month and complimented the FTC for its crackdown on the practice.

The manufacturers named in Saturday's complaints were:

Fury Records Inc., Laurie Records Inc., Abel Productions Inc., Roulette Records Inc., and Atlantic Recording Corp., all of New York City; and Class Record Sales Los Angeles.

The independent distributors accused were: Marnel Distributing Co. Inc., Ed-ness as Lesco Distributors, and Mainline Distributors Inc., all of Philadelphia: Action Records Inc., New York City, and Duke Records Inc., Houston, Tex.

FOUR AFFILIATED companies were named in the eleventh complaint-Cosnat Distributing Corp. and Jay-Gee Record Co. Inc., both of New York City; Cosnat Distributing Corp. of Cleveland, Ohio; and Cosnat Distributing Detroit Corp., Detroit, FTC said the Jay-Gee Record Co. manufactures records and the three other firms distribute them.

Long Beach took the Huskies to its bosom. Obviously, they found this a nice place to be. Other than Seattle, I doubt if the Washingtonians could have found more friendly surroundings that they had here.

Now it's obvious that West Coast representatives in the Rose Bowl games have been training all these years at the wrong places.

THE COMMUNITY'S Welcome Huskies program was carried off beautifully. Generally, Northwesterners look upon Southern Californians as either arrogant or indifferent. The gents from Seattle discovered there are some people with hearts down here. Who can say it wasn't one of the key conditions that put them on the Rose Bowl turf in such

It always helps to have some good friends in "foreign" land.

SHOCKING realization has just hit me. I didn't get a single necktie for Christmas. I'm sure it's the first time, since I wore my first neck string, that nobody has thought to get me one at the Yuletide.

For a moment, I thought possibly a fine old tradition had been abandoned---that possibly tie-giving had passed out of the Christmas picture generally.

But a quick check among my associates showed that not to be the case. All of them had done quite well in the tie department again. Only I was slighted.

THIS MAY be because my relatives and friends who might be expected to buy to a tie know about the rack of neckwear hanging on my closet door at home.

If that's the answer, these people should take a second look at those old ties. They're lattered, soiled and

Oh well, there'll be another Christmas. Meanwhile, it looks as if I'll have to dig into my jeans and pay for my own neckties.

TAKE IT FROM ME-this is an area covered by a forest of 20-foot poinsettia plants. The other day I relayed an

State Primary May Become Brown-Nixon Popularity Test

WASHINGTON-In the first concrete Democratic response to Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's surprise withdrawal from the presidential sweepstakes, Gov. Edmund (Pat) Brown of California has paid the New York Republican the compliment of imitation. Democrat Brown says that all he wants is to be a good governor and that his favorite-son candidacy is for the purpose of helping his party select the best man.

This was, a Brown aide confesses, an impulsive gesture, arising not for considered planning but from press conference conversation. It is not the first of its kind; the staff hopes it will be the last.

For what the Governor actually has been doing does not quite bear out such Olympian detachment from the still-wide-open contest for the Democratic nomina-The Governor has tion. been in conference with southern Democratic leaders about the California delegation to the national convention; earlier last week he covered the same ground with the northern wing of the party.

He was able, first of all, to tell the state leaders that he had assurances from many sources that Sen. John F. Kennedy will not challenge him in the presidential preference primary in California. No other democratic aspirants had suggested they might, al-though all of them have repeatedly visited the state and made the pilgrimage to Sacramento.

But Kennedy has relatives, friends and an embryo organization here, and he would do well, it is generally conceded by many who do not want him to do well enough. The menace was recognized by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who threatened to follow Kennedy into California, as a way, Humphrey said piously, of helping favorite-son Brown.

Left a clear field as he now expects. Brown has large and varied hopes for the primary and its powerful 81-vote delegation to the convention. Prominent among them is the fact that a well-handled drive to get a Brown show on the road could well entail a corresponding loss of prestige for the Californian now destined to get the Republican nomination, Vice President

Richard M. Nixon.

Democrats continue to have a 3-2 edge in registration; their ticket last fall, though crowded with unknowns, swept the state by staggering pluralities which in the case of Brown and Atty.-Gen, Stanley Mosk exceeded a million votes. The Governor, with a good year behind him, can outpoll Nixon, too, his friends insist.

Thus the primary could develop an interesting Brown - Nixon popularity contest, which would bring leading figures of both parties and possibly President Eisenhower into California

GOV. NELSON Rockefeller's decision to stay out of the Republican presidential chase pumped new hope into a couple of Washington Democrats last weekend. They had been rather glum of late because none of their candidates seemed able to get off the ground. Meanwhile, Ike was wrapping up next year's election with his triumphant overseas tour.

When Rockefeller's announcement was made, one of our Democratic friends smiled broadly, and cried, 'Goody, maybe we can get him to run on our ticket!' * * * *

King Solomon lists those credits to explain his accuracy in being able to predict history's passing parade.

Last Dec. 6, we listed some of the King's predictions for the next 20 years. Key to the whole 20-year panorama lay in his first forecast that the President would die during his recent Asia trip. Since this one missed, we'll have to shovel salt over most of the rest of the schedule.

Bing Crosby also was to have been a statistic by the start of the new year. This scare, also, was no more than a boo, boo, boo, boo.

Looking hard for some small goodie in the predictions, one finds that King Solo-mon said, back there in 1959:

"Nixon and Rocky drift farther and farther apart until Rocky announces dramatically that he no longer can reconcile his political philosophy with the Nixonite Republicans, and affiliates with the Demo-cratic Party."

The King adds that Rocky then will run for the Vice Presidency with Adlai Stevenson on a winning ticket.

The King's 1959 ledger must show more loss than prophet.

APOLOGIA—The rankling little omission in Assemblyman Richard Hanna's 500word statement praising reductions in salary and expenses of state legislators, defending what expenses were necessary, and decrying the mileage for which legislators are not paid, is Hanna's failure to say point-blank that his was the biggest expense account of all. We may grant that Hanna is a good and conscientious legislator and that both salary and expense account allowances for legislators are niggardly, but Hanna's care ful appraisal of the whole situation would have had a better ring if he had not omitted the news that his name led all the rest.

Hanna drew $6,714 in expenses in addition to the $6,000 salary, highest of the 120 members of Senate and Assembly. Some members have drawn more than $13,000 in past years, but both houses cut interim committee activity this year. Legislators receive $20 per day in expenses for their work on interim committees, and 15 cents a mile mileage on such assignment.

Assemblyman Hanna's two-page statement points out that three of the four assemblymen who drew over $12,000 were members of the Rules Committee, of which he is chairman, and adds:

"These members . . . are similar to the general manager and directors of a twobillion dollar corporation, and the Legislature requires the most up-to-date

Hanna also has four regularly assigned committees and is a member of three joint committees.

He noted that a colleague, Paul Lunardi (D-Roseville) traveled 26,000 miles last year on Assembly business and drew only $914.40 or about 31/2 cents per mile for such duty.

IN CONTINUING defensive tone, Hanna says:

"Legislators, who are the only direct representatives of the people in state government, draw a more 1/25th of 1 per cent of the state's annual budget as salaries. The people should insist that their representatives be fairly compensated for their

"... In my own case, I have attended 135 meetings throughout the state for appearances before service clubs, associations, League of Women Voters, and many others, since the end of the legislative general session in June, for which I was not compensated for either expenses or mileage."

Hanna's account is fair and reasonable, except that he neglected to point out who was on first in the total expense standings

Kelly Challenged on TVA Statement

John Kelly recently said in a forum letter that government could never operate a business as well as a private concern. Then why, Mr. Kelly, isn't the post office so operated? Do you know of one individual or corporation that would care to take over its operation?

The statement with regard to TVA that "the whole project stands in the red $1.2 billion" doesn't coincide with a TVA brochure dated 1957 - 58 from which I quote:

"TVA is required to pay to the U.S. Treasury from power revenue within 40 years from 1948 an amount equal to the funds which the government had advanced for the power program up to that time. Payments to date of $240 million put TVA well ahead of schedule.'

Would you allow me to use your Forum column to thank hundreds of people of this area who sent cards and presents to 13-year-Mary DeForrest tuberculosis patient at Orange County Hospital in Orange.

This was a response to a request in your paper and it made a very merry Christmas for this little girl, I hope that from time to time in the coming year she will be remembered with other notes of cheer, as now the long struggle starts and prayers and good wishes will help her so much.

3 Slayings Stun Area in England

BIRMINGHAM, England (A) -- The sex-slayers of three young women roamed at large through Britain Saturday night.

Reinforced police detachments sought desperately to hunt them down before they struck again.

While police investigated the slaying of two women in this midland city, a 33-yearold housewife, Ruth Carter, was found battered to death in her cottage home in Cowbridge, Wales. Her 6-yearson, Alana, found lying injured near her, was taken to a hospital.

IT WAS THE third such attack in just over a week,

In Birmingham 10 days ago the headless body of 28-year old Stephanie Baird was found in a YWCA hostel

Friday night the nearlynude body of Pauline Blaney, an 18-year-old factory worker, was found only three miles from the YWCA. She had been heaten, strangled and criminally assaulted.

In Birmingham Saturday night police questioned a man wanted in connection wil the death of Miss Blaney.

A description of the man Charles James Goodby, a 47year-old factory foreman had been flashed throughout the nation.

BUT GOODBY walked up to a policeman in London Saturday and said he was the man the police were looking

Earlier, Supt. James Haughton, head of Birmingham's police investigations squad, said:

"There are indications which make it seem that this second death is not in any way connected with the hostel killing."

Two hundred senior police officers from 23 midland forces Saturday were called to a special 75-minute conference in Birmingham on the YWCA hostel murder.

There, they pieced together every strand of evidence surrounding the death of Stephanic Baird and what she did and whom she saw in the last hours before she died.

VILLAGE POLICE and city patrols alerted throughout the country so far have failed to spot a curly-haired young man in a raincoat who fled from the hostel after the girl's head was hacked with a table knife.

War Peril Seen Despite Peace Talk

Foreign-Policy Experts Say Force Still Diplomacy Key

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (A) -With the fanfare of personal triumph behind him, President Eisenhower now turns from his global goodwill travels to the far more formidable tasks of hard bargaining.

Immediately ahead, at the outset of the threatening ²60s, lie the climactic steps in his crusade for peace. It will be a time for tough across-the-table talks and the shrewd use of power and persuasion.

These negotiations, focusing first on an East-West summit meeting and then on a later visit to Russia to see Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, will shape the main streams of events in foreign affairs in this, Eisenhower's last year in the White House. They will also point the direction of developments in the prospectively turbulent years of the peace crusade are clear enough-to settle disputes with Russia, to ease the financial burden of the East-West arms race, to muzzle nuclear weapons. But his strategy for success in moving the world toward these aims is less clear: So which he must negotiate.

Eisenhower's widely proclaimed purposes in his

The harsh, central fact of international life at the outset of the new decade—the second full decade of the cold war-is that the balance of power between the Soviet Union and the West is changing to the advantage of the Soviet Union.

The reassuring margin of superiority held by the United States 10 years ago has been lost in the arms race of the past decade. This does not mean that Russia will now necessarily take a decisive military lead. What it does signify is that, despite the present emphasis of world leaders on the happy prospects for peace, the underlying danger of conflict is actually as great as ever, and some experts say it is increasing.

Even more to the concern of foreign-policy makers, the shifting balance of power which gives Russia an advantage for the next two or three years suggests the probability of an increasingly aggressive and ruthless Soviet diplomacy in the predictable future.

Sometimes this prospective development on the Soviet side has-been called a policy of "nuclear black-mail." Statements and reports from all kinds of authorities in the last few months provide abundant evidence of the elements of danger in the new phase of the East-West conflict. From the government itself from Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter — have come re-peated warnings that while the Russians are talking peace they have not yet done any single thing which would justify a relaxation of Allied defenses.

French Premier Michel Debre told the NATO Council meeting in Paris last month not to be taken in by idealistic and hopeful concepts about the shape of the future or the imperatives of the present.

"Contrary to the hopes raised at the end of the last century," said President Charles de Gaulle's chief lieutenant, "peace is not founded primarily on the rule of law but on the balance of forces,"

No one in a responsible position in the chief Western capitals would dispute his declaration. But many private authorities, well informed on foreign affairs, have built upon this principle'some alarming predictions for the future.

"The possibility cannot be ruled out," said a recent panel report by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, "that the Soviet leadership, if it secures a clear superiority in the arms race, will use this advantage to blackmail or to attack its major opponent without warning.'

From a foreign-policy survey, sponsored by the Stanford Research Institute, came another prediction in purpose during the '60s will be to drive the power of the United States from Western Europe, the Middle East and the Far East while winning a new Communist foothold in Latin/America. Another report on foreign affairs was issued Dec. 5 by the Washington Center of Foreign Policy Research of Johns Hopkins University. In this, experts expressed fear that the "missile gap" in the early 1960s would create "the greatest danger to its security that the United States has ever faced." As to whether the missile gap does or will exist-a gap which is the measure of Russia's progress in 20th-Century armaments--retiring Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy told a news conference Dec. 1 that the U. S. will lag behind Russia in intercontinental missiles for probably the next three years. McElroy reflected the dominant view within the government when he also declared the gap does not mean Russia will have an absolute military advantage beyond the reach of this nation's retailatory power. The Soviet edge in longrange nuclear power, he said, would be balanced by the whole complex of U.S. defense forces, including manned nuclear bombers and intermediate-range mis-, siles stationed on NATO bases in Europe and the

ACCORDING to the Recreation Commission, which supervises the activity with he assistance of a volunteer committee, the university now ranks with London's Trafalgur Square and New York's Union Square as a famous forum.

It originated spontaneously in Lincoln Park in the earliest days of the public library there. Because the heated discussions were blocking foot traffic the city eventually built a platform inside Rainbow Pier as the stronghold of the philosophers.

When the Auditorium and pier areas were elevated in 1955, the campus was moved to the present site after a brief period during which

STUART SYMINGTON

Symington Backers See Gain in Race

By BILL ROBINSON
Associated Press State Writer

Missouri boosters say new light is beginning to shine around Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) as a potential darkhorse entry in the 1960 presidential sweepstakes.

And they contend the light will get stronger in the months ahead as other candidates knock each other out in the primaries while Symington waits offstage for the main event.

Symington's present strategy is to steer clear of the primary donnybrooks which have proved fatal to so many candidates in the past.

BUT THE Missouri senator's drum-beaters, with quickening tempo, are stressing these claims on his behalf:

He's a proven vote-getter. He has never been defeated for public office.

He's a liberal without being identified with the ultra-progressive or egghead groups.

He has had more administrative experience in high U. S. government posts than any of the current front-running Democratic candidates for the presidential nomination.

PERHAPS most important of all, the 58-year-old Symington during his seven rather unspectacular years in the Senate Itas managed to escape being linked too prominently with controversial issues.

But to hard-headed political pros. Symington has one hard-to-overcome handicap: He just isn't well known to the nation's voters.

Quietly, with a minimum of headline-making fanfare, the tall, ruggedly handsome Symington has conducted handshaking forays into 26 states in the last 10 months in an attempt to widen his personto-person appeal.

WHERE HIS SENATE speeches for years tended to hammer solely at the need for stronger national defenses. Symington lately has begun firing at a variety of targets.

Federal spending: "You have heard we Democrats are spenders, but in the last five years the Democratic Party in Congress has given President Eisenhower over 10 billion dollars less than he asked for."

Farm: "One of the sad facts of modern life is the way American farmers have been treated by the present administration. Farmers, making up 12 per cent of the population, received only 3 per cent of our revenue."

Taxes: "I would favor higher taxes if it meant more security. There is no sense in being the richest man in the graveyard."

, WHILE Symington characteristically has polite words for each of his Democratic rivals, his boosters are far from reluctant to kick a few shins in other camps. They Symington, as an Episcopalian, might get the nod over Sen. John Kennedy, a Catholic, if a storm develops over the Catholic issue.

Mental Illness Affects Babies

("Medicine and You," a regular Sunday feature of this newspaper, is prepared in collaboration with the Department of Medical Education, Spaside Memorial Hospital.)

By BEN ZINSER AND GEORGE X. TRIMBLE, M.D. Even babies may have psychiatric disorders, report three doctors at New York's Mount Sinal Hospital in the Journal of the American Medical Assn.

Because a baby's range of behavior is limited, infantile psychiatric disturbances usually are expressed as bodily complaints, the doctors say. Example: regurgitation of food within minutes after being fed. The doctors say they diagnosed one 8-month-old's trouble as "infantile anxiety neurosis with depression."

They found that the baby's problem developed after the mother ceased to give him love or attention. Treatment: a special nurse was assigned to the baby to give him constant attention. Result: baby stopped regurgitating and gained weight. The doctors—Myron L. Stein, Aaron R. Rausen and Abram Blau—say a "mother bank" may be necessary when the infant's own mother cannot be directly involved in treatment. A substitute mother would be necessary. the doctors say, because an infant cannot progress without a close mother-child relationship. "Maternal love, fondling and attention are necessary for the well-being and normal development of an infant," say the doctors.

CAPITAL AIRLINES has instructed its jet-flight stewardesses to wear ballet slippers instead of high heel shoes. Reason: the "decided increase" in ankle injuries among stewardesses on jet planes. Why more ankle injuries? "Perhaps they haven't yet got their jet legs," comments Dr. Ludwig G. Lederer, Capital Airlines medical director.

A BRITISH SCIENTIST says he can find "little support" for any relationship between dietary fats and coronary heart disease. Prof. J. N. Morris told a conference of the Royal College of Physicians of London that more important factors appear to be age, sex, smoking Comments the British Medical Journal: "If his views are correct—and they passed uncontradicted in a dis-tinguished audience—there has been a staggering waste of time and money in following false trails.

WHAT WITH protein deficiency the world's biggest nutritional problem, a British biochemist suggests a new source of edible protein: leaves of plants. One drawback: when protein is extracted from leaves, it is green" and most persons, says researcher N. W. Pirie, can't see green stew. His recommendation: encase the leaf protein in thin pastry or batter and serve as a cocktail snack. This has been tried with success in Britain, he says. The protein has little or no flavor of its own. What flavor exists is masked by the batter.

A NEW bowling hazard has been reported to the Wisconsin Surgical Society: injury of thigh muscles. The injury occurs when a bowler suddenly brakes at the foul line in a somewhat awkward position. Of three cases described in the AMA Journal, one was so severe that surgery was required,

DOES THE THOUGHT of undergoing a surgical operation frighten you (a) intensely, (b) moderately, (c) scarcely? If you answered (b), then you're less likely to be neurotic, says a new medical book published in Great Britain. Those with great anticipatory fears, or few fears, are probably neurotic.

CERTAIN PATIENTS, particularly those with heart trouble, can lie comfortably in one position but can't tolerate another. But most patients, says Dr. Francis Clark Wood of Philadelphia, rarely volunteer this informa-tion to their physician. As a result, he says, most doctors fail to recognize the phenomenon of trepopnea Trepopnea? The word, coined from the Greek by Dr. Wood, means to turn over onto another side to obtain relief from discomfort.

Dr. Wood, of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, describes research on trepopnea in the AMA Archives of Internal Medicine. What causes it? Medical scientists aren't sure, but Dr. Wood offers this theory: When a patient rolls to an unfavorable position, his heart sags to that side, obstructing flow of blood from lungs to heart to cause shortness of breath. When this happens, the patient rolls over.

IF YOUR DOCTOR has prescribed a radioactive drug, don't worry. That little pill probably contains much less radioactivity than the amount you're already receiving from your luminous wrist watch, says a booklet published by Abbott Laboratories.

Incidentally radioisotones in medicine felt, tasted or smelled. They can't cause sterility, can't explode and can't contaminate your clothing.

U.S. Held A-Rocket Ready in '58 Crisis

Millie Coine Sanders' office is at 2533 East Broadway. She specializes in income property and personalized sales of residential property. Millie, a member of the Long Beach board since 1954 is presently serving as a director of the California Real Estate Association. This year she served on the Long Beach board of directors and was chairman of the women's activities com-mittee of the board. She is past president of the Ardis Toastmistress Club, a member of the Wire Club, > national Traders Club. She is a native of lowa; attended Western State Teacher's College in Kalamazaa, Mich., and taught school for several years. She has had a varied experience in selling which began in her father's store when 12 years of age. Coming to Long Beach in 1940 Millie secured employment at Buffums', later becoming an assistant buyer. Her husband, Eddie, shares her enthusiasm for real estate profession and is an associate member of the Long Beach board.

Millie has a son and a daughter. Jimmy is a chief petty officer in the submarine service and Rose Marie, a graduate of U. S. C. is married and living in Long Beach.

She says, "I am convinced home ownership is good for all of us. What is particularly gratifying is to review the antimistic forecasts of previous years — and to see how accurately they have come to realization. The clocks all over the world have chimed in the New Year and I am convinced 1960 also will bring us another prosperous year. I agree with Calvin Coolidge who said:

BUY OF THE WEEK

12091 Christy Lane

In quiet suburban Rossmoor, 10 minutes from State College. We recommend this "Big happy family home" with a touch of luxury. Has three bedrooms and family room with 2 baths. It's "Bubbling" with improvements and extras — wall-to-wall curpeting, drapes throughout, "Dream" kitchen with built-ins. Lots of natural wood cabinets. There's a patio and the yard is fenced and landscaped. The established F.H.A. loan can be assumed. Phone me personally for an appointment to see this and other fine homes.

Perry Mason to Jolt TV Fans by Winning Case for Court Rival

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) The Perry Mason series will shake up TV audiences this month with a play in which District Attorney Hamilton Berger does NOT lose the case, Mason is asked by Berger to enter it, and Police Lt. Tragg is startled at the turn of events.

"It certainly switches around the usual rivalry relationships between Mason on one side and Berger and Tragg on the other," said William Talman, who plays the role of Berger.

Berger, traditional court-room enemy of Mason, has to ask Mason to defend a friend accused of murder. The friend had saved Berger's life, so Berger has to disqualify him-self from prosecuting the case.

Mason agrees to defend the Prices Solved man and tells Berger:

"I'll defend him even if he did save your life."

Talman said that there are good for a smile despite the Friday night arrested three murder theme.

Bikel Still 'With' Old Village Pals

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

arty inhabitants of Greenwich Village keep pushing notes under the door of folk singer Theodore Bikel's apartment.

"Have you moved uptown spiritually?" the notes ask. "Musicals yet."

The downtown devotees can't understand whatever possessed Bikel to accept the male lead of Captain Von Trapp in the Rodgers and Hammerstein hit Broadway "The Sound of Music."

"JUST TO SHOW them I haven't deserted them, I now include 'Edelweiss' in all my concert programs," says Bikel by way of apology to his far-out followers. "It's a folk song written into the show especially for me.

'Rodgers added it to the show while we were trying out in Boston. Oscar sang it to me one night in a hotel room. I liked it immediately 'Good,' he answered, 'we'll use it tonight.' That gave me about two hours to learn it."

The fact that folk singer Bikel is more than able to hold his own_in a Broadway musical that includes opera singer Patricia Neway, musical comedy star Mary Martin and TV singer Marian Marlowe is only one indication of his amazing versatility.

IN THIS ERA of Method madness, Bikel is that Broadway rarity: a man of many parts, many accents, many talents. He speaks six lan-guages fluently, sings in 14 more. In Hollywood, he won an Academy award nomination as the southern sheriff in "The Defiant Ones," played such varied roles as a Scottish grave digger (in "I Bury the Living"), a German submarine officer ("The Enemy Below"), a French farmer ("The Vintage"), a Dutch doctor ("The Little Kidnapers"), a Russian army officer ("Fraulein") and characters nging in age from 24 to 8 On Broadway he won raves in "The Rope Dancers," "The Lark" and "Tonight in Samarkland." He has appeared in more than 100 television plays, and until recently conducted his own weekly radio show of intellectual chatter and current events interviews.

AS A FOLK singer, his cross-country concert tours have been constant sellouts and his eight Elektra albums ("Bravo Bikel," "Songs of a Russian Gypsy," "Songs of Israel," "Four Songs From Just About Everywhere," elc.) have sold more than 100,000 copies in a field where 5,000 is considered a hit.

As a musician, Bikel plays the guitar, the lute, the harmonica, the recorder, drums, fulte and, since joining "The Sound of Music," the bosun's

"Director Vincent Donehue brought a Navy petty officer to rehearsals to teach me how to use it," recalls Bikel, "but he was too late. I already had taught myself. The Navy man said I was doing everything wrong with my fingers but the sound came out right. The same can be said of my guitar playing.

IN CREATING the role of Captain Von Trapp, Bikel had to cut down on the sauerkraut content of his Austrian accent so as not to clash with the rest of the cast, even though the setting is laid in the Austrian Tyrol.

New Franc in Circulation, Knocks 2 Zeros Off Prices men Saturday played a fascinating new game --juggling and joking with the "new" franc which is technically worth 100 times as much as the "old" franc.

President Charles de Gaulle's government opened the new year with the longplanned currency reform.

The French awoke New Year's morning to find a pair of pants in a shop window offered for 75 francs. There were overcoats for 150 francs and a bunch of turnips for 60

Nobody had seen these tiny coins since before the war. Sunddenly the centime was here again, worth onehundredth of one franc, in terms of international exchange one franc to 20 U.S.

What happened was that the decimal point on prices was shifted two figures to the left. THAT PAIR of pants would have cost 7,500 old francs, the topcoat 15,000 and the turnips 60.

By law, shopkeepers and restaurants have to show the price of their wares in terms of both old francs and new.

That was just the government's way of gently breaking in the new sys-

On Monday, when the banks open, stainless steel streams of new coins-one centime, five centimes, 10 centimes, 20 centimes, 50 centimes and one franc-were to start circulating.

New bills in denominations of five, 10, 50 and 100 new francs will emerge fresh from government printing office. For a time, the new money will be mingled with the old, until gradually the off the wage packets, too, and checks had to be clearly marked "nouveaux francs" (new francs).

INSIDE FRANCE, it was little more than a psycho-logical maneuver, designed to restore confidence in the currency which was slipping in terms of buying power long before World War II and which tumbled catastrophically after the liberation.

Outside France, it had the advantage of putting the French franc roughly on a par with the solid Swiss franc and the West German mark, thus promising to ease dealings with the six-nation European common market.

Earl Wilson Recalls Best Laughs of 1959

NEW YORK -- The Best Laughs of 1959 sprang from fixed quiz shows, payolas, disc jockeys, beatniks, Tues-Weld, Edd (Kookie) Byrnes, canned laughter, Toots Shor's closing, and such marathon movies as "Ben-Hur" which enabled some wit to say, "Loved Ben, Hated Hur." Mere mention of Tuesday or "Kookie" was good for a laugh,

"Psst," said Jack Carter, at the "Ben-Hur" opening, "I hear the chariot race is fixed," and everybody fell down, in paroxysms of laughter. Sam Goldwyn's "Porgy and Bess" was a 1959 entrant and one customer happened

Huskies Relax, Bask in Bowl Glory

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH Executive Sports Editor

The sweet smell of roses wafted over Long Beach today as the University of Washington's 1960 Rose Bowl champions settled down to a well-deserved rest here after clobbering Wisconsin 44-8 Friday. Some of the Huskies went on a deep sea fishing trip. Others took a postman's holiday and watched the Gator Bowl and East-West games on television.

The Lafayette Hotel pool beckoned some others, who didn't find Southern California's recent icy weather too cold for an invigorating dip.

Others visited Marineland to make up the excursion denied them during their rigid training schedule at Vet-

But they all relaxed . . . something which they hadn't been able to do since they buckled down to hard-nose drills 16 days ago when they arrived in Long Beach.

The Huskles will leave Long Beach on a United Air-lines charter flight at 4:30 p. m. Monday. They are scheduled to arrive in Seattle at 9 p. m.

Meanwhile, Wisconsin—in haste to leave the scene of the Big 10's worst defeat it Rose Bowl history—will depart at 10 a. m. today from Los Angeles International Airport. The funeral flight back to Madison will take about six hours.

One Husky gridder, huge sophomore end John, Meyers, will not accompany the victorious football squad back to Seattle Monday. Instead, he will join the Husky basketball team which plays in the Sports Arena Mon-

In fact, Meyers actually joined the cagers Saturday night as they battled UCLA in the Sports Arena. Meyers was considered a better basketball prospect than gridder when he enrolled at Washington, but anyone would have a hard time proving that to the Badgers today.

Meyers had a strong rooting section Saturday night as many Husky gridders also took in the AAWU doubleheader at the new arena.

Young Mr. Moyers had a big day Saturday as he was one of 15 Washington Rose Bowlers to fish in the ocean from a Pierpoint Landing craft. The craft left the landing at 1 p. m. and returned four hours later. The trip was arranged by Hank Kosman.

The other gridders who cast in the deep were halfbacks Don McKeta, Brent Wooten and Gary Dasso; full-back Sam Hurworth; ends Pat Claridge and Serge Grant; tackles Jack Walters and Bob Echols; guards Chuck Allen, Bill Kinnune, Larry Clanton, Dave Enslow and Barney Therrien, plus center Don Carnahan,

As the Huskies' craft left Pierpoint Landing, one spectator yelled: "Hope you guys have as much luck as you did with Wisconsin."

A gridder shouted back: "That wasn't luck, buddy!" Coach Jim Owens and his wife spent the day "catching up with our rest."

"I've been pretty worn out lately," sighed Owens,

"but it was sure worth it. I'm just going to try to enjoy myself for a few days because when we get back to Scattle, we won't be able to rest for a week."

Owens revealed he made no changes in his offense for Wisconsin, despite almost constant secret drills here.

"The purpose of my secret practices isn't necessarily to experiment with new plays," explained Owens. "I just like to keep my players' minds on the practice, not the spectators. We can accomplish much more behind closed gates than we ever could with people hanging around.

Wisconsin will agree with that theory, Mr. Owens! Quarterback Bob Schloredt, who shared the Rose Bowl heres' role with halfback George Fleming, said he still was in a daze.

"It seems like a wonderful dream." commented Schloredt. "We all knew we'd win, but not by a 44-8 score. But, It's wonderful!"

It was that-and then some!

Long Beach Huskies Won Game!

"This was a big day for Long Beach, wasn't it?" shouted an ecstatic Washington player in my ear over the din in the Huskies' dressing room Friday afternoon. "First you win the big parade, then the Long Beach Huskies win the Rose Bowl game."

'Twas a big day all right for this city-the biggest Jan. 1 in Long Beach history!

I've never been in a wilder, happier dressing room in my life than the Washington quarters Friday afternoon. The Huskies made three times the noise the Dodgers ever made when they clinched the National League title or even the World Series-and that's going some! "Be sure and tell all your readers just how much we at Washington know they contributed to our victory," yelled coach Jim Owens. "When these kids went onto the field, half of them were shouting, 'win this one for Long Beach.'"

Owens said one man in particular was responsible for the tremendous Long Beach enthusiasm generat-ed by his Rose Bowl cham-

"Pat Ahern really made us feel at home in Long Beach," declared Owens. He even gave our kids a great pep talk before the game,

The councilman slipped into the usually sacred "closed" quarters just before the contest began and told the players:

"Long Beach won the parade sweepstakes with a float featuring a girl with no arms. Now, you guys go out there and beat hell out of Wisconsin with BOTH arms."

D. Patrick's biggest Husky booster was co-captain Don McKeta, who looks so tough one teammate called him "our answer to Carmen Basilio." McKeta kept shouting "Ahern for Congress" in the dressing room and at the following victory party in the Lafayette Hotel.

"I'm gonna keep tabs on that boy," whispered Abern. "Some day he's gonna be my campaign manager!"

A final comment on Ahern, the primary person responsible for bringing the Huskies to train in Long Beach. He certainly called the turn the day the Huskies arrived here, when he addressed the welcoming throng in front of the Lafavette Hotel thusly:

"This team here today is going to bring back the prestige of Pacific Coast football on Jan. 1st. Mark my OWENS' PRESTIGE as a coach soared to the skies after Friday's 44-8 slaughter. Both he and Husky athletic director George Briggs almost were ready to walk the plank before this season started.

Owens was convinced he needed "about three seasons" to get his "type of ball club." He's got it now—and how-but he had to wade through three strife-ridden campaigns to produce this champion.

I mentioned before the game in this column that Owens opened my eyes—and the eyes of every other Southland writer who viewed Washington's practices. The Husky drills were far tougher than any game. Those Husky kids were like hungry tigers in practice . . . and the fact that Owens' technique in this respect paid off is a matter of everlasting record.

Press boxers were deeply impressed with Washing-ton's tremendous pursuit, something also mentioned here. A Husky player might have been knocked to the ground, but he never stayed there.

"It was discouraging to see our guys put some good blocks on the Washington players," sighed Wisconsin quarterback Dale Hackbart, "then have those Huskies get up and run back to the play. We've never seen tigers like that in the Big 10—NEVER!"

JACK CURTICE, whose Stanford team meets Wisconsin early next season at Palo Alto, couldn't give Washington enough praise.

"I liked Washington by a single point before the game," said Curtice, "but I never thought they'd massa-

Washington's 44-8 conquest of Wisconsin was no fluke

It was a solid, convincing and stress of the second well-deserved victory. The Badgers are fortunate the score wasn't greater.

Wisconsin had no excuses even though it was one of those days when everything went wrong for the Badgers and everything worked to perfection for Washington. However, it was the crisp hitting and mobility of the Huskies in the main that made it that way.

Under normal conditions, of course, Washington is not 36 points better than Wisconsin. Even in an off-year such as Big Ten people claim '59 was for them, their champion is not that inferior to any team in the country.

WISCONSIN DEFINITELY was a disappointment to the Big Ten. In fact, veteran observers left the Arroyo Seco Friday night declaring that it was the most poorly prepared team the Midwest conference has sent to the Rose Bowl.

The coaching staff and the players deserve tremendous credit for a magnificent effort.

ger, but slow-moving Baugers and the were flatfooted, off-balance and out of position all afternoon.

Possibly the key to Washington's smashing victory is the fact that Wisconsin, a hard-nosed outfit when met head on, has extremely poor lateral movement. The coaching staff spotted this in the scouting films and mapped their strategy to take advantage of this weakness.

WASHINGTON played catch-up basketball the entire game and almost forced an overtime period when a despondent poor lateral movement. The coaching staff spotted this in the scouting films and mapped their strategy to take advantage of this weakness.

came on wide plays off tackle or around end. As quarter-back Bob Schloredt said: "We did a lot of damage by running wide and then cutting back inside. They were just too slow to cover."

Dixon led the Marines to Miss Olympics an undefeated 10-game seaton climaxed by victory in the Shrimp Bowl in Galvestating Glass of Germany, slow to cover."

WHY DIDN'T THIS WISCONSIN weakness show itself during the regular Big Ten season?

Well, for one thing, it has been pointed out this was ar off-year for the Big Ten with the perennial powers in the throes of rebuilding, plus a favorable schedule.

Secondly, the Big Ten suffered the worst slege of bad weather in its history and all but two of Wisconsin's nine regular-season games were played on wet or muddy fields that more than covered up the Badgers' lack of lateral movement because rivals were unable to go wide because of the playing conditions.

The Washington players themselves were extremely surprised at the easy time they had. All thought Wisconsin would be much tougher. They rated virtually every team on their schedule as hitting much harder than the Badgers.

Commenting on this, Schloredt said "Wisconsin did much of its hardest hitting after the ball was dead,"

WISCONSIN HAD NO DEPTH to speak of, according to the Huskies. They said there was a big dropoff between the first and second teams, which is the reason why the Badgers had to go most of the way with their starters, which left them spent and tired in the second half at a time when most Big Ten teams start coming on strong.

Wisconsin was still very much alive until George Fleming's 55-yard punt return late in the second quarter followed by Leo Folkins' spectacular catch of Schloredt's pass down the middle for a TD that made it 24-8 at half-

Even then, Wisconsin coach Milt Bruhn still felt "we could win it," but Washington nailed the coffin shut by moving 66 yards with the second-half kickoff to make it 31-8. Wisconsin went to pot after that and completely lost its poise. The players noticeably let down after that score and the Huskies reveal that the Badger players began to argue among themselves and bawl each other out as they "Bowed Down to Mighty Washington!"

CANNON LEGAL BATTLE RAGING

Rams Sign Stalcup; Rymkus to Oilers

The Rams Saturday lost an assistant coach and signed a high draft pick as the legal controversy continued to whirl around Billy Cannon, LSU's all-America back who signed a contract with Houston after first indicating he would sign with the Rams. Lou Rymkus, line coach for the Rams in 1958 and 1959, signed a three-year signed Wisconsin guard Jerry Stalcup.

Meanwhile, a n o nymous reports and speculation grew about the size of the contract used by the Oilers to lure Cannon away from the Rams.

It was reported Saturday that he would get a bonus and a three-year pact totaling $100,000, plus a new car.

There were reports, too, that he had been promised a string of Billy Cannon health centers plus the operation of service stations, each bringing $1,000 per month and 50 per cent of the net profits. Ram officials were still seething, inferring that Cannon accepted a bonus last month when he announced he would play with the Rams.

"The Rams have fulfilled their part of the bargain and expect Cannon to respect his part of it," said Pete Rozelle, Ram general manager,

Shannon Should Be Excellent Director

One of the shortest "open" seasons in California history ended last week when Gov. Pat Brown decided to make 52-year-old Walter T. Shannon director of the Department of Fish and Game. Just eight days before he took that action he had named Shannon acting director when he transferred William E. Warne to the directorship of the Department of Agriculture.

In those eight days, most of the "antis" and the 'pros" in organized and unorganized sportsmen's circles had fired letters and telegrams to Brown insisting that Shannon was or was NOT the man for the job.

It's just as well that Brown settled the issue in a hurry. He should have done it the day that he decided to "promote" Warne. Shannon had been deputy director under Warne, as well as under Seth Gordon, the man Brown fired to make room for Warne. The fact that Shannon, a DF&G career man, served under Gordon no doubt caused some delay, and also might have had something to do with the power plays on the part of the state's so-called top-ranking sportsmen.

SHANNON SHOULD MAKE an excellent director. If Gordon and Warne liked him (which they did), it's a cinch he knows what he is doing. His background is excellent. He graduated from Pomona College in 1930, worked two years for the Bear Valley Water Co., four years with the U. S. Forest Service in San Bernardino National Forest, then took a warden's job in the Los Angeles area. He later became a fish and game captain and then assistant chief of the fish and game patrol in 1951. Soon thereafter Gordon tabbed him as his top assistant.

He knows the fish and game business from the bottom up; perhaps that's why the antis don't like him. It's a peculiar thing why the directorship of the DF&G in California is such a political football.

Our thought is that most of the feudin' and fussin' is born of pure selfishness, with each organization favoring a different man for the job.

One other thought is that the fishermen and the hunters should give some rousing cheers over the fact that a real professional is heading the department. But in reality it never happens that way. They are like fans at a mass wrestling event; they keep yelling, but they don't know for whom or for what.

COVERING MANY SUBJECTS as briefly as possible: 1960 fishing licenses are on sale at 4,000 agencies throughout the state and you'll need one if you are going to fish for ocean or fresh-water game fish. Try your favorite sporting goods store.

Time has run out on most of the hunting seasons. Quail, chukkar, cottontail and brush rabbit are over at after sunset today. Waterfowl may be hunted through Jan. 8. Pigeon season (many wonder what it is) ends Jan. 10. Bear season ends Jan. 15, except in Humboldt County, where there is no closed season or

A "ROBOT TRAVELER" automatic control coupler is announced by Cartco Engineering of Colton, Calif.

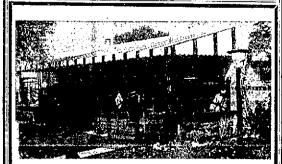

This patented control coupler is an equalizing hitch that will also convert any tow bar utility or load equalizing hitch into an automatic control coupler, states Jack Curtis, its inventor.

Entirely new principles are used to accomplish such exclusive features as directional control, trailer holds car against sway, stops all ill affects from passing busses or wind, trailer cannot roll over or tilt outward on curves, and front wheel traction is increased while turning.

The hitch load is raised instead of dropped on curves to save excessive tire wear.

ACCIDENT INSURANCE

Accidents are the largest single cause of crippling, dependency and destitution in the United States.

This is especially true today when 19 persons are being injured every minute-and accidents are more expensive than ever before. Doctor bills are higher—hospitals charge more—you lose more if your paycheck stops when you are laid up.

This policy, available to you and the members of your family covers accidents at Home, at Work or School, on the Street, in your Automobile, etc.

A bookkeeper who has only a minor accident, like an injured left wrist, can collect as much as he pays for several years protection—even if he does not lose a day from work.

For more serious accident you collect much higher benefits, as shown in the chart on the left.

For January brings a live theater staging of "The Elves and the Shoemaker," in preparation since fall by more than 40 members of Theatre. The play by Nora Tully and Charlotte B. Chorpenning is being given by special arrangement with the Children's Theatre Press of Anchorage, Ky.

The production will open in the Little Theatre, Long Beach State College camous, Saturday and will run for four weekends with performances at 10 and 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. Saturdays, and at 1 and 2:30 p.m. Sun-

PARENTS of children in grades three through six will receive brochures from schools giving full details concerning hours when their children may attend. Charter bus service will be provided by Children's heatre at a nominal fee. Because of the holidays, time is short for ticket sales, so prompt replies are necessary; tickets should be ordered in advance through the schools.

"The Elves and the Shoe-maker" by the Brothers Grimm has been dramatized imaginatively, and to the original story is added an impulsive apprentice elf, Widget, who is earning his for the shoemaker's family. The misuse of his magic leads to a merry mixup, but everyone is happy at the end except Heckla, the villianess, who is spirited away, never to be seen again.

ADDITIONAL enjoyment for the young audiences will be the fact that they can see the elves at work on stage while the human actors in the play cannot: an elf can be seen only if his hat is off!

Under direction of Mrs. Edward H. Kay, who re-ceived this year's Community Playhouse award for best support, the cast includes elves Widget, Finella and Gremlo, played by Mmes. Ben Lipson, Allan Guantlet and William L. Kitch; Shoemaker, Mrs. John Dixon; his wife, Mrs. Guy P. Garland; daughter Karen, Mrs. Kent Hayes; village girls, Mmes. Thomas Kustura, C. H. Beasley and Richard Stratton; Heckla, Mrs. J. E. Motsinger; Dame Margery, Mrs. William V. Artman, and Ursula, Mrs.

Mrs. Douglas B. McFarland, president, assisted by Mrs. Richard Driscoll, vice president, has co-ordinated production arrangements.

They offer two suggestions to parents: read the story with your child be-fore he sees the play, and

A DOUBLING of the polio rate last year in California despite widespread inoculations, and the need for continued care of prevaccine victims were cited by Dean as the prime reasons for an all-out campaign this year.

He pointed out that despite an emergency appeal by mall in the early autumn, the Long Beach chapter still is caring for some 100 local patients on a deficit basis.

30-60 Day and

They All Laughed When They Said: 'Regards to Henry J

By MARY LOU ZEHMS

When I breezed out of the office last month to sail on the SS Matsonia to Honolulu, my co-workers, Jola, Elise and Joyce, jokingly called after me: "If you meet Henry J., give him our regards!" They meant, of course, the world's leading industrialist, Henry J. Kaiser, at whose hotel, Hawaiian Village, I would be staying for several weeks.

What they didn't suspect, and what I didn't know, was that I WOULD meet the great man. (Heard it wasn't easy, especially for renorters.)

This is how it happened. I knew there were several employes of the hotel who were former Long Beach residents and their jobs were such that they warranted news stories. So I set out to find them. After three days of floundering in a wet paper bag, I finally called on Robert Elliott (someone had suggested it) only to find he is Kaiser's right-hand man, administrative executive assistant and

THIS KINDLY gentleman and I sat in the offices sipping coffee and chatting when Henry J. walked in for a board meeting. In the meantime I was shown the sketches, drawings, relief maps and plans for the newest Kaiser project, Hawaii Kai, a residential and resort community of 50,000 persons, which is being built on the other side of Diamond Head, past famed Walkiki Beach. The cost is 350 million dollars and each home will have a slip for a sail boat or motor boat or an ocean view. The entire arca covers 61 acres. Just the day before I arrived, Kaiser took Art Linkletter, Bob and Mary Cummings for a ride in his jeep up the many valleys and hillsides of the Maunalua area now under construction.

UPON MY DEPARTURE, I turned to Kaiser and said: "Several friends from Long Beach send their regards.'

He replied: "Yes, I have a great many friends in that area. You know, I have a gypsum plant there.'

That same day held even more surprises when I met the youngest manager (in except for a young man with vision and ambition.

Durham is not one to sit in his office to supervise, either. He was all over the place, checking, observing and visiting with guests. He told me that more than 70 per cent of their tourist trade is from Long Beach and surrounding area.

One Sunday evening we sat opposite each other at the hotel's famous weekly luau, at low tables, on small pillows on the floor. By the time the meal was over and the hula dancers had departed, Jim and I just about knew what size shoe we wore. When word went out he was in the crowd, every Tillie and Lem from 44th St. and paper and pencil in Jim's face for his autograph. Although he's used to such actions, I must admit I was ashamed of our tourists from the other 49 states who constantly interrupted his dinner and continued running over to him even when the stage show was in progress.

Little Gigi had a throat infection and was in the hospital the first week of their stay; then their nursemaid took off for parts unknown, so it turned out to be the kind of a vacation you dread. However, Jim managed to get in 18 holes of golf each morn; an hour of swimming and diving each noon in Diamond Head pool and several games of beach volleyball during the afternoon.

All of us who chummed around with them were greatly impressed by their sincerity and friendliness.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

A Factor in Marriage

My problem is the guy I am going to marry; I've gone with Jack for nine months, and we've had a wonderful relationship.

Recently I found out through a friend that Jack was in a mental hospital for three years after the war. My friend told me he was confined because of his violent temper and spells of depression.

Jack always has been good to me, but, Molly, he never talks about his past, and has seldom mentioned his family to me.

Am 1 risking too much to ask him to tell me about it, or should I just drop the matter and trust him?

HESITANT DEAR HESITANT:

Don't you realize how essential it is to know outessential it is to know outstanding factors in his for Women background, just as he should in yours? Wouldn't you call his family a major factor? Wouldn't you call his mental and physical record a major factor?

By all means, talk about these things. M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD;

I have a horrid confession to make. My very dearest friend (we were roommates in college) told me the other day about an affair she was having with an ex-beau. And guess what I did? I went and told her husband!

I kidded myself, I guess, into thinking it would be for her good, He went and told her what I said, and, ot course, she said I made party slated Jan. 27.

North Gives O!' Ted Fires Blast Up Idea of at the 'Sophomores' Grand Slam

Today's South hand was the subject of the "Card Sense" questions for the past several days. There is no problem to the play at six no-trump. South wins the spade lead in dummy and goes after the club suit. He has to lose a trick to West's queen but makes four clubs, two hearts and three in each of the other suits for a total of 12

The South bidding has been discussed in the Card Sense questions but it is the North bidding that is really worthy of study.

SOUTH'S opening club bid and two no-trump rebid showed 18 or 19 points and North has 16 points of his own. He could have jumped right to six notrump but North wanted to explore grand slam possibilities.

His three heart bid temporized and when South raised to four North showed his diamond ace South the spade ace, North the club king and South the diamond king.

At this point North went to six no-trump. This bid clearly told his partner that he (North) could have bid six no-trump any time but awanted to invite seven. South studied a while the gradual upsurge of two groups in our way of life, These are the KKKK and its auxiliary, the KKY the KKK.

By TED KREC Being a rather critical observer of the social scene, I have noticed with disdain

Ominous as 🛴 these groups sound (and are), they have nothing to do with the Ku Klux Klan. The letters stand for Klean Kut Kollege Kids and Kute Kollege Kids.

You all know members of these groups. They are the people who never recovered from the impact of going to college - perennial undergraduates.

Members of the KKKK. the men's group, go around in sports coats and slacks (preferably of the tweedy variety) and open-necked sport shirts, while their fe-male counterparts in the KKK wear their hair either long and flowing or caught up in a ridiculous, juvenile ponytail.

THESE GALS might be the middle-aged mothers of three or four children, but still they persist in wearing full, plaid skirts, sweaters and blouses and, horror of all horrors — flat shoes. Why not? After all, this apparel made a big hit on campus 10 or 20 years ago!

Members of this group, though they be age 30, 40 or 50, cling tenaciously to their memberships in and came to the conclusion that while his side held all the aces and kings the really important queens of hearts and clubs were in possession of the enemy. Seven still might make it but it was not a good contract and South passed at the safe spot alumni associations, fraternities and sororities as if they are afraid that by relinguishing them and entering the adult world they are bidding farewell to their

A social gathering at the homes of these people always is a joy to me, too. The fathers are real "buddies" to their sons and the mothers are "sisters" to their daughters. They refuse to let the kids alone.

And the conversationhow stimulating! Everything is discussed with an air of phony intellectualism, but nothing ever is resolved. They spend so much time looking at both sides of a situation that they miss the whole, pressing point, That's why few of these people ever are truly successful. To me, the successful, go-getter type of person is the one who believes in something so strongly that there 15 no other side. This is the money player.

AND AT these gatherings you always hear about the RIGHT people. Who ARE the right people? I think that ALL people who are industrious and contribute something to society, no matter how small it is, are the right people.

This business about the RIGHT people is intellectual snobbery at its highest, and intellectual snobbery can be the worst kind.

In my book every person has the right to two things, personal pride and personal opinion. You do not have to agree with what a person says, does or thinks, but by the same token you do not have the right to try to change him, either.

I believe firmly that college is a stage of development, not a career. And education is a thing to be USED, not WORN.

Show me a man who begins a conversation with: 'l'm a Harvard man, myself. What school did YOU attend?" and I'll show you a boor of the first water. A truly educated man SHOWS you, he doesn't TELL you!

If you want to see members of the KKKK and KKK in all their glory, just attend a college football game. The older members of the groups will be easiest to spot. They'll be wearing raccoon coats!

listened to the superb singing of the Metropolitan's leading tenor, Richard Tucker, in a recital at the Philharmonic Auditorium, I felt so sympathetically akin to all he did, vocally and interpretively, that my very soul seemed wrung tight with emotion. The timbre of his voice thrilled me, the expert production amazed me. But it was the warm heart of the man that reached deep down.

It reached deep down into the heart of the audience, too, for on his very first entrance, the applause was so long and hearty that he finally remarked, "With such a greeting, how can we miss?"

The day after the recital sat for an hour with him in the patio of the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles. Here again, our spirits were akin; we had traveled the same road, knew the same people, had the same ideals. Only I was of the older generation.

RICHARD TUCKER is young to have achieved international fame. At 45 he is famous for his operatic roles at the Met, at La Scala, Covent Garden, Vienna, South America and Israel. He has been biddento sing a "command per-formance" at the Paris Grand Opera House next June when he will receive the coveted and rarely given ribbon of the Legion d' Honneur.

In Israel, where he is a great favorite, having sung eight "Toscas" and several performances with their symphony orchestra, (all free of charge), he has founded a scholarship for

Operas, Masses, Cantatas on LPs

Although Christmas carols are still in the air the Public Library suggests other types of vocal music for the New Year. New recordings that may be borrowed from the record section of the Main Library are the modern operas:

Prokofiev, "The Flaming Angel" and Weill, "Mahagonny," and a new re-cording of Puccini, "Girl of the Golden West" conducted by Matacic.

There are also beautiful cantatas, such as the four volumes of Bach performed by Helmut Krebs. Gunthilde Weber, Dietrich Fischer Dieskan and a choir and orchestra conducted by Fritz Lehmann.

Masses conclude this week's list, with such items as Berlioz, "Requiem" conducted by Hermann Scher-chen and Machaut, "Le Messe de Notre Dame' with the Pro Musica Antiqua of Brussels.

talented young musicians in his name and one in his wife's name. Our own Hollywood Bowl knows something of this man's generous heart. When bankruptcy threatened our cherished summer "Symphony Under the Stars." Richard Tucker flew out from New York to sing, without a fee, a perform-ance of "Faust."

IN ADDITION to his great God-given talent, Richard Tucker is a deeply religious man. For years he was the Cantor of the Brooklyn Jewish Center, the most famous one in greater New York. To this day, he never lets the New Year's services go by without making the trip to Montebello in the Catskill Mountains to sing gratuitously for his friends who have known and believed in him since he was a boy. He has boys of his own now, three of them-aged 21, 18 and 13-and they all live happily in Great Neck, Long Island, N.Y.

"MY WIFE is my severest critic, and best," de-clared Tucker. "She tells me the truth, and I take it! When one can't take the truth about himself from one who knows, he is finished!"

His favorite topic seemed to be about his beloved vocal teacher, Paul Aithouse, a tenor who also sang at the Met and with whom he studied for 13 years.

"I never studied with anyone else after his death," said Tucker, "What he taught me, I do. And I never sang a performance at the Met without first running up to his studio to run over my part with him. He was listening to me sing over the radio when he

CHEF OF THE WEEK

C. Standlee Martin Expert in Kitchen

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

If people and things could be synonymous, C. Standlee Martin would be an auto mobile.

Martin, today's Chef of the Week, is starting on his second "cook's" tour. On June 9, 1949, he gave a continental twist to some turky hash. His recipe today is for Flaming Roast Duck with Orange Sauce, It has a particular twist, too.

A native of Long Beach, Martin first saw the light of day in his home at 8th St. and Pacific Ave., where the Automobile Club now stands. He comes by the motorized vocation naturally, for his dad, a Texan, was one of the first automobile dealers in our city. He started the first agency for an electric auto way back in 1905. The name "Standice" he inherited from his mother. It was her family name LOCAL grammar schools Poly High and USC rounded out his education. And Martin is just now rounding out 30 years in the automobile business. His first car was the old Auburn, but in 1932 he took on the Oldsmobile. He's still "sold-on" and selling the Olds today. While 1227 Long Beach Blvd, has been his scene of operation the entire time, it has grown from a domicile of 50-foot frontage to a full quarter of a block encompassing 80, 000 square feet of space.

Martin's a collector, too -of antique cars. All dif ferent kind, sizes, makes and shapes have been among his souvenirs.

Presently he has another hobby in the form of a 200 acre ranch in the Coachella Grapefruit, cotton. alfalfa and grapes all vie for honors among his crops. He tours his acreage by means of a twin-engine 3-10 C Cessna

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA.....JANUARY 3, 1960

OUR COVER-

On a giant beam that tied long rows of piling together a few inches above a gently lapping tide, two fishermen lay prone in the warm winter sun that slanted its mid-afternoon rays under the mile-long platform above them. The day was Sunday and the scene was quiet, peaceful; the fishermen lay half asleep as they dangled a line in quest of small fish that had learned to school about the newly set piling and the cavern that was the underside of a pier. Suddenly a small black whale, lost in the intricacies of the growing harbor and exploring all avenues of possible escape, surfaced and blew with a "whoosh!" that almost startled the two anglers into the drink—that close was the wandering mammal. Such was Pier A in the early thirties. Today, ships and men and warehouses and traffic have voided the winter anglers' claim. What has happened on Pier A is told on Southland's Cover and on Page 9.

Lawrence Welk and his Champagne Music would never get beyond the dress rehearsal stage if it weren't for Lois Lamont. Secretary to Welk and the band for 14 years, Miss Lamont has the role of a mother hen, taking care of hundreds of details and guiding the musicians through their most difficult spots. We'll tell you all about her next week in a story called "Champagne Music and Shorthand."

The Chair Is an Ancient Symbol

By Helen L. Gillum

CHAIRS have been around for so long that they are taken entirely for granted, except when buying furniture or when acquiring antiques. The attitude is natural because the history of chairs begins almost with the history of man

Chairs found in 5,000-yearold Egyptian tombs are so well designed and made that they are considered masterpieces in the evolution of chairs. A Chinese mandarin's Chair, dating from before

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

EAR MISS RULE: Please print the origin of Bullock -M.C., Garden Grove; Mrs.

R.B., Long Beach.
M.C., R.B.: Inn keepers in old England used picture signs to advertise their businesses. The family who owned the inn called "At the Sign of the Bullock" had a bull's picture on their sign. Later they used Bullock as a surname. Richard and William Bullock are in old 13th century Oxford records. The family coat-of-arms has three silver bull heads and an ermine chevron on a red shield. The American family founder was Richard Bullock who settled in Rehoboth, Mass., in 1640.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the analysis of AKERS and ACKER-ILA. Compton; F.B., R.A., Long Beach.

H.A., F.B., R.A.: The surnames AKERS and ACKER were from a term in the Middle Ages that described inherited estates. The modern word "acre" is also from this source. Among early English possessors of the name was Bartholomew de Akers, bailiff of the city of Norwich in 1282, The AKERS coat of-arms has a diagonal gold stripe between three gold acorns on a black shield. Among prominent American descendants was the noted sculptor Benjamin Paul Akers (1825-1861).

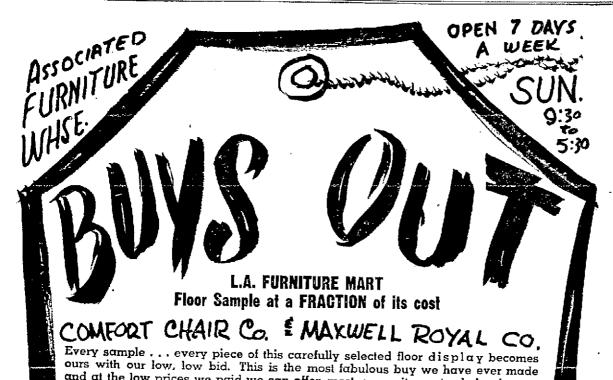

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you inform us on Johnson-Mrs. N.J., Norwalk M.J., Seal

N.J., M.J.: JOHNSON (Son of John) was recorded eight centuries ago in Britain. The Hebrew Kabalistic meaning of John was "Gracious Gift of God." There are more than 60 different coats-of-arms for branches of the Johnson lineage. One of the oldest shields has three flaming gold castle towers on a shield tinted black on the left half and blue on the right half. The Irish on the right hair. I'me irish Johnson shield is silver, with three blue spear heads centered on it. A man with the tautological name John Johnson is considered the first Johnson ancestor in America. He arrived from England with Winthrop in 1630, settling in Massachusetts. There are also numerous Swedish and Norwegian Johnsons in America.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the meaning of Maxwell Mrs. J.S., A.M., Long Beach.

J.S., A.M.: The MAXWELL lineage traces back in the distant past 1,000 years ago, the early English given-name Maccus or "war-club wielder." This first recorded Maccus or "war-club wielder" fought with the English against invading Danes in the Battle of Maldon in A.D. 991. In 1130 King David I of Scotland appointed a descendant of Maccus to his court and in return for his services, granted him a large Scotch estate called Maccus' Well (Maccus' Spring). Maccus-Well was shortened to Maxwell in the 1200s. The family coat-of-arms has a doubleheaded black eagle on a silver shield, with the motto "Reviresco" meaning "I grow young again." Among early south Pennsylvania land owners were James, John, Philip and Samuel Maxwell, in the late 1700s.

The Decade That Launched the City

By Maymie R. Krythe

ONG BEACH was a sprout in 1900 and a full-fledged plant at the end of 1910, booming in the decade in both population and land extent,

While such names as Theodore Roosevelt, William McKinley, William Howard Taft, Carrie Nation, Henry Ford and the Wright Brothers crashed into the headlines, Galveston was having its hurricane, the U. S. was being crossed for the first time by auto, San Francisco was dealing with earthquake—and Long Beach was going about the business of growing into a city.

At the turn of the century, population here was 2,252; as 1910 faded into history, 17,809 persons had taken up residence in Long Beach.

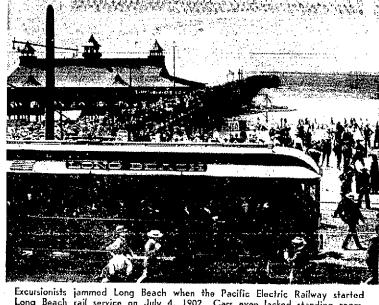

FIRST BOUNDARY expansion in the decade was the addition of 243 acres of Alamitos Townsile. Next, 915 acres of Ierrilory to the north; then Carroll Park, part of Terminal Island and a 32-acre strip on which are now located the Navy Base, Edison plant, oil wells and the old Ford plant. Belmont Heights, at first an independent town, cast its lot with the city to add 1,196 more acres.

In 1885, when the first postmast-W. W. Lowe, began business, he had $3 worth of stamps. As business increased the post office was located successively in several sites, both on Pine Ave. and Long Beach Blvd. (American Ave.). In 1910 Congress appropriated $40,000 for a building. appropriated $10,000 for a bunning. At the end of the decade the city had had several newspapers; the Long Beach Press-Telegram began in December 1904 as a daily. In 1907, the Tribune, first to publish a Sunday edition here, merged with the Press-Telegram.

A new chamber of commerce movement was launched in 1909; several more churches were estab-lished during the decade; the Craig Shipyard began operations; there was some dredging of the Long Beach channel; and a City Charter was adopted in 1907.

RECAUSE THE Long Beach population figure had increased more than 790 per cent since 1900, the Census Bureau in 1910 sent an investigator to check the amazing re-ports of the census enumerators. It was said that the Bureau hesitated to accept the figures, fearing they had been padded. However, the investigator returned to Washington, declar-ing that the figures evidently were authentic.,

Seeking to unlock cancer's secrets, a vast survey is under way across U.S. Above, local aides Mrs. Fred Tetley (1), Mrs. Paul Seal ready questionnaires.

By Ben Zinser Independent, Press-Telegram Medical News Reporter

THE BROADEST medical survey ever undertaken in this country is under way.

The massive project, known as the Cancer Prevention Study, seeks to unlock the secret of cancer by an intimate inquiry into American culture. Across the nation 500,000 familiary and the project of the lies—more than one million individ-uals 30 years of age and older—are being asked to fill out confidential questionnaires.

Answers to these questionnaires will be scrutinized in an attempt to pinpoint relationships between per-sonal living habits and cancer. The study, prepared by the American Can-cer Society, will continue for six years and will look into the health habits of adults in 21 states—areas that have been scientifically selected as representing the most valid crosssection of American life.

Thirty-two thousand of the fami-lies will be residents of Los Angeles County, 7,000 of them in the Greater

Starting This Week, 500,000 Families Will Fill Out Questionnaires With the Hope of Long Beach area. About 4,000 Orange County families are to be included in the monumental poll.

BESIDES CALIFORNIA, which will contribute 65,000 of the 500,000 total of families, states in the study include Arizona, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia

The four - page questionnaires, which required a year to develop, delve into how Americans live, their occupations, personal habits, family backgrounds and medical histories.

American Cancer Society statisticians will analyze exhaustively such factors as heredity, environment, diet, occupational influences, living stan-dards and air pollution in an effort to relate them to occurrence of cancer. In other words, they will be explor-ing for dominant clues as to why some persons may be more likely to get cancer than others.

It is hoped these clues will point to common factors which may cause

AND WHEN THESE factors are known, an attempt then will be made to evolve ways of preventing cancer,

Some 70,000 volunteer workers, 750 of them in Long Beach, current-ly are being trained as researchers for the nationwide study. Each vol-unteer will enroll about 10 families in which there is at least one person more than 45 years old. Only members of these families who are more than 30 years old will be eligible to fill out a questionnaire.

Each participant will place his questionnaire in a sealed envelope for transmittal to American Cancer Society headquarters in New York. All information will be kept confidential, and not even volunteer workers will know the contents of the completed question forms.

Periodically during the next six years, volunteers will make reports on the health status of the families for which they are responsible. Can-cer cases which occur will be studied in relation to information given in the original questionnaire.

THE QUESTIONNAIRE already has been field-tested in Baltimore, Md.; Cleveland, Ohio; Harrisburg, Pa.; Nashville, Tenn.; and Tampa, Fla. Results of these pilot studies will not be known for a year.

The survey does not require a physical examination by a physician.

The questionnaire is framed to clarify such questions as:

-What occupational hazards can lead to cancer?

--What relationships exist between cancer and other diseases?

—Is frequency of childbirth asso-clated with cancer?

-How much relationship is there between failure to breast-feed a child and occurrence of breast cancer in mothers?

-What about the possible relationship between menstrual disorders and uterine cancer, or between circumcision and the occurrence of can-

-What are relationships between diet, food, beverages and cancer?

How effective are cigarette filters in relation to lung cancer?

-How is smog related to cancer? —Does a person's standard of liv-ing have anything to do with his contracting cancer?

ANOTHER OBJECTIVE of the study is to find out what percentage of the public has undiagnosed cancer. Medical investigators want to know whether those who have cancer have had certain symptoms or think they have had them. They want to learn have had them. They want to learn how often a person develops cancer without any apparent symptoms. They also want to determine how often a patient may be responsible for delay in seeking diagnosis and treatment.

Two questionnaires will be used one for men, one for women. Both forms include sections on general characteristics (age. race, marital status, religion), family history, his-tory of diseases, physical complaints and habits.

The form for women gives spe-cial attention to questions relating to the breasts and female genital organs. The form for men asks special questions on occupation.

Among leaders of 500 volunteers who will keep tab on almost 5,000 Long Beach area families in survey are (left to right) Mrs. Richard Flacco, B. J. Canistrasi, Dr. Robert Feldman and Mrs. Jack Matthews.

A Pier Into the Future

By Ted Krec

NEXT TIME you have a day off and you're puzzted about where to take the family, just point the old bus to Pier A, Port of Long Beach, and you'll be in for an eventful time.

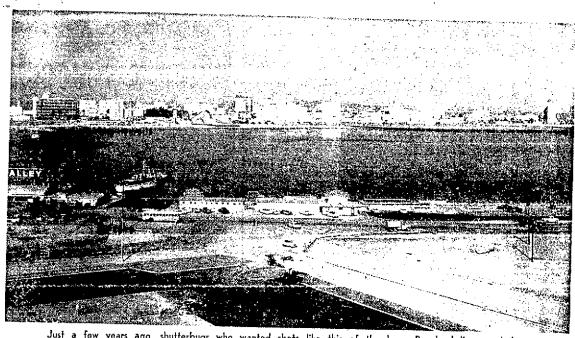

There's more to see and do on Pier A than in any of a dozen tourist traps in the Southland.

What's down there? Well, Pier A can offer you great ships, many flying foreign flags and often scheduling visitors' days; a giant incinerator, huge cargo sheds, gigantic storage areas, hundreds of pumping oil wells, row upon row of foreign automobiles lined up awaiting delivery to dealers, long lines of railroad cars with interesting cargoes, seaplane landings, naval vessels and last but by no means least, Pierpoint and Pacific Landings.

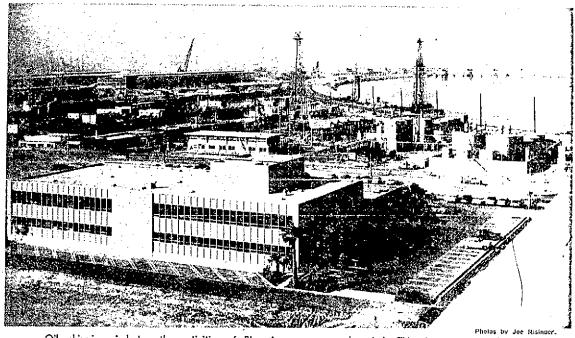

Long Beach Harbor itself is a. paradox, because while a great battle is being waged to keep parts of the harbor area from sinking, the Pier A sector is making steady gains on the sea!

A trip to Pier A is truly worth while, particularly if you're interested in seeing the fastest growing area of Southern California. Just consider this—if you had wanted to fish from Pierpoint Landing 11 years ago, you'd have ended up mighty wet, for the site on which it is built didn't even exist prior to 1947!

Just a few years ago, shutterbugs who wanted shots like this of the Long Beach skyline needed a boat. Today, sprawling Long Beach-made Pier A provides many locations to shoot onshore pictures.

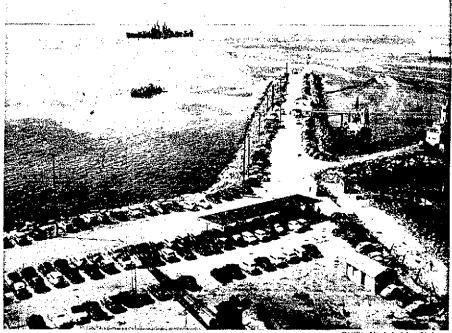

Oil, shipping, industry—the activities of Pier A are many and varied. This view gives an idea of how busy pier is on work days. Pierpoint and Pacific Landings offer interest for visitors, anglers.

Freighters from the world's ports call at Pier A regularly, using vast warehouses and modern cargo handling facilities.

Pierpoint Lending is shown here just after opening in 1948 (dock at the center). Spot where fishing barge is moored is now the middle of the huge parking lot!

When a Smooch Is a Revelation

MOVIE kiss is more than just a kiss. It's a revelation. It's a trademark for every actor and actress simply because no two people smooth in exactly the same manner, and on a big screen the differences are fascinatingly magnified. Variations in technique also reflect an era—like the deathless love-making of Greta Garbo, the passionate swoonings of Renee Adoree, and others whose techniques are illustrated here. Today's style is best exemplified by Ava Gardner and Gregory Peck in their new film, "On the Beach," also illustrated. How Ava's kisses compare with some other romantic stars—well, see for yourself!

In boudoir scene some years ago, Greta Garbo, John Gilbert raised temperatures with highly charged romance in "The Flosh And the Devil."

Roneo Adoree used the closed eyes, swooning style with John Gilbert in "The Big Parade," then ran after him in memorable wartime scene.

Clark Gable "glues one on" Vivien Leigh in a scene from "Gone With the Wind," torrid romance with kisses that swayed a generation.

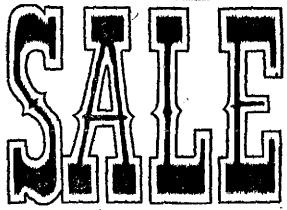

Sophia Loren and Cary Grant kissed politely after they had dragged a gigantic gun across most of Spain in "The Pride And the Passion."

See what we mean about Ava Gardner and Gregory Peck as they display some super-charged smoothing in United Artist's "On the Beach."

Where Extras Spell Perfection

Massive fireplace and high, beamed ceiling are among features of William Whitley family's home. Tall marble planter at far end of room has an interesting "past."

WHEN MR. AND MRS.
William Whitley first saw the house at 3151 Bradbury Avenue, they realized that with the addition of a few carefully planned extras and details, they would have a perfect home for themselves and their family.

Seen from the front door which opens into the living room is a portion of the large kitchen on the left rear and the dining room to the right rear. Sliding glass doors across the dining room wall afford a panoramic view of the patio and swimming pool beyond. At once there is a feeling of spaciousness com-bined with cozy warmth in the home.

An entrance-hall effect is created with a couch placed to the immediate left of the front door, facing the other end of the room. The wall on the right of the entry is covered with a lightweight, brick-design plastic, painted rose-beige like the rest of the walls, providing an interesting three-dimensional appearance and an attractive background for the living room

THE SALEM MAPLE living room furniture gives a homey yet gracefully formal feeling to the home. Attention is almost immediately drawn to a statuesque marble planter which stands in a corner of the room. At one time it was an ornamental street lamp in the city of Venice; later, with others like it, it served as a floor light in the famous beach mansion which once belonged to Marion Davies. It is now a prized conversation piece, both for its unusual beauty and unique history.

The expanse of a high, beamed ceiling in the living room is broken with a low half-ceiling extending the length of the room and projecting about four feet from the wall. Indirect lighting which runs along the top of this ceiling gives the room a soft glow which cannot be

The dining room is large enough to accommodate a full dining set, also of Salem maple, and a custom-made buffet with a wear-resistant marble top. The far end of the room, which would normally be wasted space, has been utilized for a practical purpose without intringing on the room area: built-in bookcases fill the once bare wall.

The formica bar which separates one end of the kitchen from the living room was originally designed for looks rather than use. How-ever, Mrs. Whitley felt that it would be ideal for a breakfast or lunch counter if it were large enough. The simple addition of a drop leaf, identical in thickness and made of matching formica, has made it usable without detracting from its decorative quality. The area can now seat two on either side with room to spare.

THE FACT THAT the swimming pool can be seen so easily from both the living and dining rooms is advantageous from the point of view of attractiveness and also, what is even more important in a home where there are children, the safety ele-ment. None of the swim-ming area is hidden from vlew, and the surrounding patio is large enough for outdoor entertaining with easy access to the dining room and kitchen. The whole play area seems to extend a welcome to small children as well as adults.

The decorating theme throughout the Whitley's home seems to be "make it practical as well as orna-mental." Proof of this once again is in a bedroom addition. On the wall facing the bed two large closets with shutter doors were built with a dressing table in between. Atop the dressing table, a television set is built into the wall with a remote control by the bed, a simple luxury without pretense.

Carpeting in the home is a fine quality wool with a salt and pepper design in subdued tones of beige, dark beige, and off-white. While this particular carpeting would blend well with furniture of almost any color, it goes un-usually well with the rose beige tones predominant throughout the home, Extending into the bedroom and also into the adjoining bathroom, it adds to the feeling of spaciousness in the house, which seems to be larger than its 1,630 square feet would indicate.

A corner home with its accompanying larger lot com-mands attention, and if it is tastefully landscaped and well-kept, it seems to set a pace for the neighboring houses. With good taste displayed both outside and inside, the Whitley's home does just this.

The Decade

"We felicitate the beautiful and prosperous city of Long Beach on its growth of population. To move from 2,252 in 1900 to 17,809 in 1910 is to march with recordbreaking rapidity. If, ren-dered skeptical of the truth of childhood's tales, we had come to doubt the existence of a giant who put on sevenleague boots, we would doubt no longer. Long Beach wears his boots. . . . It is not easy to set bounds to what an alert, prosperous, public-spirited and intelligent community will achieve in the years that wait."

Two for Back to Hearty Pat

Something "solid" to get back to after the sweets and fancy foods of the holiday period are these two sturdy dishes: cheese-flavored spagnetti and chili con carne.

By Mildred K. Flanary Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

ARE YOU READY for some good old down-to-earth cating after all the fluff and flummery of the holidays? Yes? Well, this chili con carne when teamed with cheese-flavored spaghetti makes a good buffet main course for a teenager party or a good family meal for hearty appetites.

A relish tray, a beverage and apple dumplings will complete an appetizing menu. Here's how to prepare the two main dishes:

Chili Con Carne

- 2 tablespoons fat
- cup finely diced onion
- lb. ground beef
- cans (8 oz. each) (omato sauce
- ½ cup water
- 2 teaspoons kitchen

bouquet

- teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper I teaspoon chili powder
- teaspoon oregano
- cup minced green pepper

2 cans (1 lb. 4 uz. each) kidney beans

Melt fat in large skillet, or Dutch oven over moderate heat. Add onion and saute one minute. Add ground beef pulled into small pieces. Cook until meat is slightly browned. BOOK REVIEWS

Errol Flynn and His Wicked Ways

DEFORE actor Errol Flynn died unexpectedly last Oct. 14, he had finished his autobiography "MY WICK-ED, WICKED WAYS" (Putnam, $4.95). In the prologue, he wrote:

"... What do the people know about me? Nothing. The wives I have had, the mistresses I've kept, the pictures I've made, the brawls I've been in, the bounces I've taken, my made and lost fortunes, my wicked ways-these are not me. I could not live and believe that these things were really me. Who could live with himself believing himself to be a symbol of sex and nothing more? What makes anyone think that I am less concerned for the verities of the world than anyone else? Was it all a prank that I went to Loyalist Spain, that I sided with Castro, that I've plumbed the sea depths, and traveled the world? The search for sensations has played a great part in my life, but there have been other quests."

Flynn then proceeded to write about his life as it was lived — pulling no punches. His first encounter with sex was when he was 13, with the family housemaid. There were countless others, each carefully documented. He relates his "first" experience with an irate husband while still in his teens, with a dream girl who turned out to be a shill, with a princess whom he called a sadist. It all sounds like a dossier of women he conquered. But there is much more, . . .

He tells about his early life in Tasmania, where he was born; his experiences shearing sheep in Australia, prospecting for gold in New Guinea. He had done one bit of acting and he liked it. So he headed for England, hoping to do more. En route, he had all manner of experiences in Manila, Hong Kong and Macao, Finally, in Hollywood, he achieved fame as the swashbuckling movie hero of millions. But life there was not all roses: There were more women. Alimony reduced his fortunes and cramped his style.

Last June 20, when he turned 50, gave himself a birthday present of a big stone house on the north side of Jamaica, overlooking the Caribbean. The second half-century of his life was starting, but it didn't last. A few months after he wrote the last chapter of his life, death came in British Columbia.

Did he really write the book? Say the publishers: "The book was finished before Mr. Flynn died, and every single word was written by Errol Flynn. In fact, the book would have been ready for publication at the time of his death had he been willing to accept our editing. Instead, he required us to reset the entire book, making it the hard-hitting, uninhibited account of his life he had dictated originally."

Flynn's life moved forward at breakneck speed. So does his book

"FUEL FOR THE FLAME." by Alec Waugh (Farrer, Straus and Cudahy, $4.95): The versatile writer of "Island in the Sun" has turned from the Caribbean to the Far East for this novel centered on an imaginary island in the China Oil is discovered, and suddenly the island is torn by plots, counter-plots, espionage, counter-espionage, hate, passion, ambition. A British diplomat tries to hold the island under Britain's sphere of influence; a king fears to die because the island will fall to a young, untrained prince; the prince dares to love an English glrl; families flaunt authority; oil camp wives are driven by boredom into affairs; a young oil man is trapped by love and weakness into treason. It's a brilliant novel, destined to be a 1960 success.

"THEIRS BE THE GUILT," by Upton Sinclair (Twayne, $3.95): In 1903 when Upton Sinclair was 24 years old, liv-ing in two tents in the hills north of Princeton, N. J., he wrote "Manassas," a novel of the War Between the States. He expected to make it a trilogy, the next volumes to be called "Gettysburg" and "Appomatox." He didn't write the other two, because he found the world was "tired of historical novels." Now past 80 years old, considered by many to be America's greatest writer, he has rewritten his early novel under new name "Theirs Be the Guilt." Readers who remember "Manassas" will miss ficry passages of the young, brimstone-snorting Sinclair, but they will find maturity, a greater compassion for the frailties of human beings, and Sinclair's lifelong passion for social justice. The book has been selected by the publishers as the first of the American Classic Series, making available classics of American literature which have gone out of print.

"THE COMPLETE BOOK OF COIN COLLECTING" by Joseph Coffin (Coward-Mc-Cann, $3.95): Coin collecting is gaining more and more converts, and this is just the trick for the novice collector

AZTEC CALENDAR STONE

CONTRARY TO GENERAL BELIEF, pre-Columbian Mexico was easily on a par with Europe in the fine arts and the practical crafts, in social and ethical values, and in many branches of knowledge. So says Frederick A. Peterson in "ANCIENT MEXICO" (Putnam, $7.95), a completely fascinating volume which traces the development of Mexico's peoples and the facets of their every-day life and culture from the days of the earliest hunters to the Spanish conquest. The book is richly illustrated with photographs, and with maps and drawings by Jose Luis Franco, Peterson, an anthropologist, has discovered several lost cities in Mexico, where he has resided for 10 years.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor

A policy of "massive retaliation" is endangering our national security, charges Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, U.S.A. (Ret.) in "THE UNCERTAIN TRUMPET" (Harper, $4). And he should know about things military, for Gen. Taylor has just retired from the post of Army Chief of Staff. Severe but constructive in his criticism, he proposes in his new book a more flexible strategy which would use the three military services on a more cooperative basis and would make provision for "limited" wars. Congress undoubtedly will have something to say about Taylor's charges when it meets this week, though there is much in it for those who take collecting seriously. Coffin is generous in his discussion of United States money, foreign and ancient coins, and how to col-lect them, care for them, expand a collection or gain a profit from them. There are also helpful lists of dealers, periodicals and organizations, a glossary of terms commonly used by numismatists, and 16 pages of photographs.

DELAPLANE

"Can you advise us on tipping in Japanese hotels? I mean the real Japanese hotels in the country where you sleep on the floor."

T IS a complicated process to put out "tea money." Your room maid (who is also your waitress and adviser) should sit down with you and work this out. It comes to about $1 a day.

She should figure out the tip to the bath boy (or girl), the doorhoy, porter—and I think the chef gets a little cut.

Then you ask her what she gets for a "present-o." And she names a modest figure (after much protesting), and you figure out what it should be. I usually guess it at double.

There are special envelopes for this and she can buy some for you. (Get more than you need and it will save you time in the next hotel).

Anyway, don't give the money openly, Wrap it up.

The hotel will give you a present-o, too. Usually a handkerchief, That's a present you give ONLY when people are leaving. Il suggests tears, that's why.

In Japan, you do not open a present in front of the giver. Wait until you are alone or on your way.

If you carry a few pairs of nylon stockings, small size, you have a nice supplementary present o for maids. Besure they are gift-wrapped. Wrapping is an important part of Japanese ceremony.

vitth 300 HUGE rooms done in an expensive French provincial decor not usually squandered on resort hotels, the handsome, 3-year-hotel El Embajador Hotel at Ciudad Trujillo, D. R. is a symbol to Dominicans.

It is the social center of their island, their favorite calendar and post card art and the shrine of all their hopes for a lucrative tourist industry.

It is also the biggest white clephant in the travel business, a symbol of the most puzzling regional failure in the heart of the most successful resort area in the Western hemisphere.

Ever since it was built on a bluff overlooking the 1957 Caribbean Trade Fair that hardly anyone bothered to visit, it has rarely run to more than 5 per cent occupancy. The neighboring Jaragua Hotel, now closed for repairs, numbered only exdictator of Cuba Fulgencio Batista and his buddies among its guests until they moved on to safer pastures.

MANY THEORIES have been advanced for the Dominican Republic's forlorn position in the West Indian Garden of Eden. Our own suspicion is that most people couldn't locate this place for you between Brooklyn and Brazil. It has suffered from the most inept tourist promotion program of any Caribbean government. When we asked a high official what was being done about it, he shrugged and explained, "Pan American is doing a lot of advertising."

The airline owns both the leading hotels and has even gone so far as to shoot jets in here thrice weekly from New York and Miami. But it hasn't been able to overcome the handicaps.

Anyway, it probably deserves a better tourist fate than it has received. As a police state, it's the most contented and prosperous you're likely to find.

CIUDAD TRUJILLO is a clean, bright metropolis almost devoid of slums and poverty, distractions that haunt thoughtful tourists in many so-called tropical paradises.

For those who still haven't enough to do, there are first-class baseball all winter, a $75,000 lottery and a gambling casino in the Embajador. And for those who still haven't any place to go this winter, there's all the bargaintate airline and holel space you can use.

Right there is more than you can say for most of the Caribbean.

A World on the Move

By Fred Taylor Kraft

MAKE NO MISTAKE about it, 1960 will be the greatest year for travel the world has ever known.

Americans have an insatiable yen to "get away," to explore and see new sights, and they will lead the parade. The people of half of the rest of the world, particularly Europeans, are recovering from effects of the war and they, too, will be on the move. For most the objective, of course, will be the U.S.A. Not all, but most.

Good times have a great deal to do with it, but don't forget that the jet age, hav-ing solved the problems of time, space and budget, is a big factor.

And almost everywhere-Europe, the Near East, the Orient, paradises of the Pacific, West Indies and South America-luxury hotels and other accommodations are springing up in anticipation of a harvest of tourist dollars.

The carriers - particularly the airlines - are adding to their equipment as fast as they can get delivery. In the case of the airlines, it's jets. Steamship companies are hurrying new liners to completion for the staggering burden that will be placed upon them. In this country, the railroads and the bus companies are likewise getting set.

And even now the faithful travel agent, the guy who knows best how to get you there and back, is working overtime.

IT USED TO BE that, to travel, it took time most people didn't have. Travel was for the idle rich. The jets have changed all that. Now you can board a jet for Hawaii, for example, have a lei-surely cocktail or two with newly found friends, eat a dinner that would be a credit to your favorite restaurant, indulge in a little more chitchat, and lo! There's Diamond Head right under you!

MONEY? Pay later. Thousands will, this year, because most enterprising airlines (and which one isn't, these days?) have some plan whereby you may get in the travel swim for a ridiculously modest sum down.

AN INSTANCE: Scandinavian Airlines System just announced "Treasure Chest of World Travel," an off-season tour program with four departure dates. For $200 down, you get 42 days of air-sea cruising that would put Kipling or Conrad to shame. You board an American President Lines luxury liner at Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor and from that moment you relax like royalty. You visit Hawaii, Yokohama and Tokyo where you drink tea with a Geisha, and attend Kabuki dances. Then you board an SAS jetliner for Hong Kong, Saigon, Singapore, the dancing girls of Bangkok, temples of Calcutta or New Delhi and the holy city of Benares. You, zoom on to Cairo, Tel Aviv, Istanbul, Athens, Rome, Copenhagen-and home. Travel for the idle rich?

JETS WILL TAKE thousands to the South Scas-the Samoa and Fiji Islands-and Australia after hopping first to Honolulu. Tokyo, which now claims to be the world's largest city and fastest-growing tourist center, will be a popular destination. And why nol? There's the lure of the strange sights in the Far East, beautiful countrysides, luxuri-ous accommodations such as double rooms for about $9 top (Tokyo's brand-new, 11story, air-conditioned Hotel Nikko). Other jets will streak across the Atlantic to Europe, and by the same method of transportation, Mexico City is only a whistle away.

AIR TRAVEL is not all, Matson lines has scheduled 75 Pacific sailings this year-15 voyages to the South Pacific, 59 to Hawaii and a yearend cruise to Acapulco. Special reduced rates and additional ports will make these cruises especially attractive. Other steamship lines are offering similar inducements.

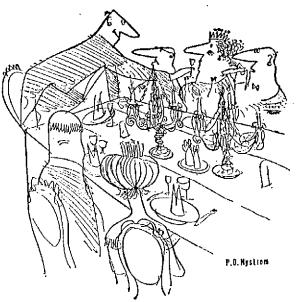

HAWAH AND Alaska, our newest states, will be the objectives of a great human tide. Particularly Hawaii: 'The Islands entertained 240,000 visitors in 1959. This yearand the figure comes from the Hawaii Visitors Bureauthe number is expected to jump to more than 650,000!

Gondola Lifts

Two new gondola lifts, first of their kind in North America, went into operation near Banff recently. One of the $500,000 lifts carries passengers 4,950 feet to the top of Sulphur Mountain through a vertical rise of 2,300 feet. Each glassed-in gondola can accommodate four adults while the hourly capacity of the lift is 450 persons. The ride takes approximately eight minutes.

Another gondola lift has been built near Lake Louise. It is designed to carry pas-sengers above tree-line on Whitehorn year round and it is expected to be in operation this winter. Lift's similar to these new ones in Banff have been operating in the Swiss Alps for years.

In Scandinavia, Skaaling is an ancient and honorable art.

Here's How to ... Skaal!

COONER or later, visitors to Scandinavia will be exposed to the ancient and honorable ceremony of skaal.

Originally, skaal meant nothing more than bowl or, in, those remote, pre-glass days, something to drink from. However, what they poured their potables into seems to have been of secondary importance to the old Viking warriors. The drink came first —the vessel was only a necessary incidental.

Such skaaling as there was had religious significance and toasts were offered to the gods and later to the saints. Not until fairly recent times did skaal become a salute of and to friendship and skaaling the ritual which accompanies it.

SCANDINAVIAN Airlines System's tour officials say that apart from certain local customs and minor nuances, visitors will find that skaaling methods in the four countries are much the same. The procedure goes as follows: The skaaler lifts his glass, catches the eye of the one he wishes to toast, says "skaal," bows slightly, tips his glass and drinks. Still holding his victim's eyes, he bows again before putting his glass on the table. The person being toasted simultaneously repents the action.

This brief but strictly observed ceremony in no way interferes with drinking since there is no established limit on the number of skaals that can be offered at any one sitting. However, there are polite forms that must be followed. If you are a guest in a home, protocol says you neither eat or drink until your host makes his "velkommen til bords" speech and prof-fers the first skaal, literally letting the cork out of the bottle. Antique Chair

THE EUROPEAN "faldestool," dating from about 1200, was a chair of state upon which cushions and rich fabrics were draped. The term is the origin of the word "fauteuil," or upholstered chair, which was the ancestor of our modern upholstered chair. Perhaps the most famous chair of all time is the Chair of St. Peter at Rome. It is of wood and is overlaid with carved ivory and gold. It is thought to be Byzantine work of the 6th century,

For many centuries the chair was a symbol of honor and power. It appeared only in houses of worship and the palaces of royalty and no-bility. Then the common people began imitating the furniture of the upper classes, and the chair was on its way to becoming the favorite "sitting-down" place of rich and poor alike.

American furniture design of the early Victorian period was really a version of the French antique-revival style, While over-ornate at times, it did have beauty and grace of line.

THE MEDALLION-BACK parlor chair pictured on this page belongs to Miss Olive Breed of 2510 E. 2nd St. It is of late Victorian make, of solid black walnut and the back and seat are upholstered in green antique velvet. The frame is finger-molded, and decorated with carved scrolls. The legs are gracefully canted. This chair was brought across the plains from Boston long ago by Miss Breed's grandfather, and is known to be at least 80 years old.

Armless chairs such as this one were also known as "side chairs" and were of all sorts and kinds. They included the heavy-backed, rush-seated chairs of the Empire Period, chairs of the Empire Period, "Grecian" chairs with their curved back posts, the painted and gilded "fancy" chairs, and the elaborately carved and upholstered items of various Victorian substyles.

Pier A--Still Thrusting Seaward

A has become the longest man-made pier in the world; and, keeping pace, Pierpoint Landing has become the largest public sportfishing landing in the world.

ing in the world.

The figures tell the story—this year's gross at the landing will be $2 million and the foot traffic count is running to three or four million a year.

But how did it all get started? Well, it's actually a two-headed story, because the history of Pler A and the story of Pierpoint Landing are woven together tightly.

According to Bob N. Hoffmaster, chief harbor engineer for the Port of Long Beach, the original pier area was built by a variety of methods in 1933. The Port of Long Beach and City of Long Beach Harbor Dept, paid for it. Bulkheads were erected around the edges and the center was pumped full of saud from the harbor bottom, much of it from the mouth of the Los Angeles River.

much of it from the mouth of the Los Angeles River. Pier A kept its original shape for a number of years, but in 1947 it started to grow, and hasn't stopped yet. In that year a land fill was finished on the inner side of an old rock breakwater (Continued on Page 24)

BEAUTIFUL HOMES: Southland takes its readers into a different, attractive Long Beach area home each week.

It's the Longest Pier in the World

By 1948, a "finger" 30 feet wide had been erected south from the end of Pier A, and the Coast Guard lighthouse which used to be on the end of the old breakwater was moved to the point of the extension.

Next, a small frame building was moved out onto the finger for use as a ticket office, coffee shop and tackle store, and on April 3, 1948, Pierpoint Landing began operating.

There was one pier, two fishing boats and a fishing barge, operated by Fisherman's Wharf of Long Beach. Inc. This outfit managed the landing. It obtained a permit from the Harbor Dept. on a 30-day revocable basis. This was changed to a five-year revocable permit in 1950.

The partners in the Fish-erman's Wharf venture were J. E. (Mac) McClintock and William A. Nott, McClintock is well known to many because of his television broadcasts. He had been a big businessman with a flair for promotion and advertising when ill health overtook him. The doctors told him it was time for a change and he was looking around for outdoor work when Pierpoint beckoned.

From humble beginnings, Pierpoint has assumed giant proportions. In this area today one can find shops featuring foods and goods from faraway lands, restaurants, tackle store, fish market, harbor tours, seals to feed and countless things just to watch.

Across the pier, on the east side, lovers of the exotic will enjoy the Reef, $150,000 Polynesian restaurant. Views from the Reef are breathtaking, with a choice of watching ships glide by or seeing the lights come on in Long Beach, just across the harbor.

Near the Reef is Pacific Sportfishing Landing, another excellent rendezvous for the angling gentry,

The best part of it all is that you can SEE the area growing. Right now Piers F and G are being hooked on to the south of Pier A.

Here's the way it eventually will shape up: Right now there are 225 acres on Pier A. Pierpoint Landing occu-pies slightly more than 10 acres of this area under its leasing agreement. Pier F will be filled within 18 months. Ten new ship berths will be available by 1963.

In another five years, they'll add Pier H and Pier J by 1978-40 new berths in 20 years. Who owns it? The City of Long Beach Harbor Dept. has trusteç ownership under a state grant,

New buildings? You bet! The new Harbor Dept. building, seven stories high and costing $3 million, juts up from the center of the pier, rivaling the new office building of the Van Camp Seafood Co., built under a lease ar-rangement with the city.

Just 11 years ago it was all water. Today it's the longest pier in the world -

Who knows? They may build it clear to Catalina!

1959 Pet Parade in Review

By Eleanor Avery Price

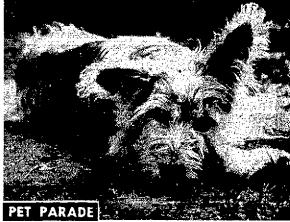

ET-WISE, 1959 was a big year, and here are a few of the high lights:

Poodles continued to take the country by storm. Along with this came a drop in price and the inevitable decline in quality. However, good show stock still commands a good price.

Strong increases were also made by minipture Schnauzers, Bassets, Brittany spaniels, and Pugs. Among dogs registered in the field stud book, Pointers and English Setters led all others. German Shorthairs made sound advances as did Brittanies. Vizslas, Labradors, Weimaraners, and Irish Setters fol-lowed running almost neck to Parakeets began to sell for a better price since the trend was and still is in favor of guaranteed talkers rather than cheaply priced pet birds. Mynahs and lovebirds became

The demand for other small animals remained on an even keel, except for monkeys which surged ahead.

Projects Make Picture Stories

Father, son and a workbench . . . the beginning of a family project, and the beginning, too, of a fine photographic story.

By The Shutterbug

"project" under way—a basement recreation room, a bedroom to finish off upstairs, a hobby the family shares, or games the whole family enjoys?

Such projects are ideal material for picture stories, and such picture stories will keep the fun—and the frustrations—of the project alive for ever.

It's natural to take "before and after" pictures of any interior decorating or construction projects. The pictures that make the story, though, are the ones which are taken while the project is in progress,

PERHAPS JUNIOR, and a model airplane he is building, are the center of interest in your home for several winter evenings. This, again, is a natural for a picture story—from the opening of the model kit to the glide test in the living room.

Or maybe, it's just a game of Scrabble.

No matter what the "project" is, though, you will be pointing your camera principally at people. And, since these will be indoor shots, you will be using available light or flash illumination.

New, high-speed, blackand-white and color slide films allow you to make many pletures with existing light which formerly would require flash or photoflood illumination.

The black-and-white films are equally at home whether used indoors or out. But, with color slide films, be sure you use a Type B film balanced for tungsten lighting if you make available light indoor shots at night.

THERE ARE SEVERAL ways that flash illumination can be varied to give you pictures different light and shadow balance, and more variety.

The simplest, and one of the most effective, is simply to remove the flash from the camera. This calls for flash extension cord and attachment, but it does wonders to improve the lighting of facial contours, and you then have the equipment needed for other flash variations as well.

COMPETITION in black and white and color slides will launch the new year for the Long Beach Camera Guild at a meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Los Altos Library, 5614 Britton Dr.

CAMERON'S NURSERY
16910 WOODRUFF AVE., BELLFLOWER TO 7-2439

By Dorothy Jonson

If you are going to set out bare-root roses, get them immediately while there is still a good choice in the nurseries and garden supply shops.

If you do not know how to plant them, I have a bulletin telling you exactly how it should be done. If you care to have it, and also one on year-round care of roses, I will be glad to mail both to you if you will send 10 cents postage and your name and address to Dorothy Digs, 208 W. California St., Pasadena,

The last week of this month, I always devote this column to roses so that you may have the advantage of any suggestions I can give at the time you are ready to do your pruning, which should not be done in South-ern California until between February 1 and 15.

I recommend the use of agricultural sulphur in rose beds at this time of year . . . use 2 pounds to each 100 square feet (a space 10 x 10 feet). Impregnate it into the soil lightly with a pronged fork so as not to disturb the fiber roots.

Fuchsia Meeting

"Landscaping the Shade Garden" will be the subject of discussion and demonstration by Philip E. Chandler of Santa Monica, horticultural consultant, lecturer and writer, at a meeting of the California National Fuchsia Society at noon Sunday, Jan. 10, at Hollydale School, 5511 Main St., Hollydale. Officers will be installed. Dinner in potluck style will be served prior to the meet-

Officers to be installed include Elmer Monson, Long Beach, president; A. Roy Joyce, Los Angeles, first vice president; S. G. Copeland, Venice, second vice president; Mrs. Helen Frank Rice, Bell-Barger, Hollydule, treasurer; Allen G. Tunstill, Whittier, public relations director; Mrs. Robert Nicholson, Palos Verdes, membership secre-tary; and Erma Standlee, Newport Beach, publicity director.

William J. Taylor of Anaheim will be master of ceremonies and James W. Peters of Bellflower will install the new officers.

Lenten Roses Are Rewarding

Lenten roses bloom throughout the winter. They grow best in loamy soil with several hours of morning or afternoon sun.

By Joe Littlefield

ENTEN ROSES, helleborus orientalis, are unlike most single wild flowers resembling the rose. The spent blossoms don't wilt, wither and dry like roses, camellias, azaleas, or most other plants. When they've finished blooming the flowers turn a chartreusegreen color, as if starched, and seemingly start all over again.

When the seed pods have ripened and burst, one petal after another shrivels and dries, until finally the blossom disappears.

And the best part of it all is, once the plants start to bloom usually late December, they'll continue flowering into

THE USUAL COLOR of the blooms was deep rose or plum color, until Chelsea and Dorothy Bellona of El Monte started to grow them. They've developed colors ranging from almost pure white, through pinks, rose, on to deep plum shade, and also some speckled varieties, too.

One of the reasons growing of lenten roses lost favor years ago was because the plants were supposed to grow in shade. The Bellonas found they could grow them in sun. We've tried them but found we had better luck growing them in shaded areas where they received only about three hours of morning or afternoon sun. The flower stalks grew stunted in full shade, due perhaps to foliage smothering out the light and warmth, and some just rotted off because it was too wel.

Light helps the flower stalks to grow.

THESE PLANTS like well drained soil with humus-material worked in, whether in pots or in the ground. The large, palmate foliage pre-sents a tropical effect. The flowers last several days when cut flower stalk ends are split before they are placed in container of water,

Although the blossoms look like single wild roses, they do not belong to the rose fam-

Southland CROSSWORD PUZZLE HOW TO Make Desk, Shelves (Start With a Door)

I. A DESK PLUS matching book shelves-all made from flushpanel doors! (No need to touch a saw to wood in this project.) Shelves are 12-inch-wide doors, available at many lumber yards. Desk is 18 inches wide and standard (80-inch) door length. Twin storage boxes were bought unfinished.

2. USE AN OLD discarded chest as a sturdy base for this desk in a child's room. Legs were added in this version to raise desk to window height. The book shelves are commercial stair treads; the rounded edges look "finished" without planning. Total cost of this project 193 50. of this project: $22.50.

3.4. BE CAREFUL where you place screws in a hollow-core door. To save weight, doors are solid wood only near ends and at sides (for handle, lock). Fasten legs to thin wood cleats, then screw them to door along edge, as shown.

5. THIS HANDSOME double desk slides neatly between two beds in boys' room, looks built in. Birch door cost just 10 dollars; it was sanded, shellacked, and varnished for smooth, durable surface. Support is "unfinished" chest, painted, screwed to door up through top.

KEN McCONNELL And Quail Eggs Too

KEN McCONNELL never—absolutely never—does things halfway.

When he decided to put steak and sandwich items on the menu of his beautiful restaurant at 3918 Long Beach Blvd., he didn't merely add a couple of steaks and a few sandwiches.

No, indeed. There are now seven featured steak dinners at Ken's Pancake Parade, half a dozen sandwiches and one of the most unusual dinner salads featured anywhere in town.

The seven steaks, priced from $2.10 to $2.85, are all chopped sirloin, top quality, served in seven fascinating ways. The varieties include the Paul Bunyan Steak (with raw ontons and horseradish); the Russian Steak (topped with sour cream); the Polynesian Steak (sweet and sour sauce); the Spanish Steak (special Spanish sauce); Sizzling Chopped Sirloin (mushrooms and butter-garlic sauce); the California Steak (onions cooked into the meat), and the Chopped Steak U.S.A. (a large plain steak).

ALL ARE SERVED with a remarkable salad that includes ½ of a head of lettuce, garnish of beautiful Croton leaves flown in from Hawaii, mint pears, half of a pink, green or blue quail egg; stuffed loquat and a stuffed olive as big as a golf ball. The price also includes hash-brown potatoes, broiled tomato, beverage and strawberry pancake with whipped cleam and brandy sauce for dessert.

Ken's delicious new sandwich additions include the Polynesian, Yankee Burger, Calcutta Chutney Burger, Burger a la Italienne, International Burger and Scandinavian Burger.

Still featured are his fabulous varieties of round-theworld pancakes, all light, fresh and delectable.

New Parade hours are Sunday through Thursday 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.; Friday and Saturday 7 a.m. to 1 a.m.

WHY I FIGHT FIDEL CASTRO

By the former head of his Air Force PEDRO LUIS DIAZ LANZ

page 4

The author won greatest success as Lorelei Lee in Gentlemen Prefer Blandes, spoof of the 1920s.

A lesson I learned from life

by CAROL CHANNING

There was a time when I was a lot of people—both on and off the stage. Imitations of well-known personalities is a stock-in-trade of mine. And when I mimicked Judy Garland or Marlene Dietrich on-stage, I'd find myself adopting their characteristics off-stage as well.

Naturally, with all this going on, it was very difficult for Carol Channing to find out who Carol Channing was. When I bleached my hair-blonde for the leading role in Gentlemen Prefer Blondes, the dilemma got even worse. Lorelei Lee was recognized across two continents as a dumb blonde, and since I was playing that role I became a dumb blonde myself. No kidding. I lived the part I played.

Finally I got so confused that I sought out my friends in show business. I said to George Burns and Sophie Tucker and others: "Surely, you've found yourself in this same spot—all mixed up, not knowing who you really are. For an actress where does the theater end and real life begin?"

George Burns gave me the answer. "Be yourself," he said. "But it isn't as easy as it sounds. It takes time, but it's the only way you'll ever find happiness."

That's when I began studying myself instead of studying others. I took inventory of my likes and dislikes, my peeves and preferences. What were my strong points, my weak points? I discovered how right George was. It's so easy to tell someone, "Be yourself." But it's difficult for any of us to find out how without deep, honest soul-searching and frank assessment of character traits.

I found out that to me the most important thing on earth is to be loved and admired, first by my husband and my 6-year-old son, and then by audiences for whom I perform.

When I was a little girl back in San Francisco I was big for my age and no one admired me very much; that's when the desire began to burn in me for recognition. That's why I became an actress. And as an actress I've learned that it's impossible to live a well-adjusted life without first identifying yourself to yourself.

So this very minute, ask yourself this question: "What sort of person am I really?"

If you can answer that question honestly then you are yourself. That's the first step toward true happiness.

Re ulcer: In Racketeers in exile by PABADE'S Jack Anderson (Nov. 15), exiled racket boss Lucky Luciano, now back in his native Italy, was quoted as saying: "Every time Anslinger's ulcer acts up, he takes it out on me. I wish he would get rid of the ulcer or die of it."

That brought this retort from Harry Anslinger, chief of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics, in a letter to Anderson: "I do not have ulcers, but when I get them I will not call them 'Lucky.' They will be named 'Unlucky.'"

Blessed event: Today's article about the impending addition to Britain's royal family (The new royal baby, page 8) recalls the historic family portrait shown below. It was taken at the Buckingham Palace christening of Princess Anne in 1950. George VI, father of Elizabeth who holds the 3-month-old infant, was King. His wife is holding Prince Charles. Others to be seen in the photo are the late Queen Mary, George's mother, and the Duke of Edinburgh.

WHY I FIGHT FIDEL CASTRO

by PEDRO LUIS DIAZ LANZ

Former chief, Cuban Air Force

MIAMI, FLA. NE YEAR AGO this week, Fidel Castro triumplantly entered Havana and took over the Government of Cuba. One of his first moves was to appoint me chief of the Cuban Air Force, Today, 12 short months later, I am opposing Castro's revolution with all the strength I once used to help bring it about.

For the second time in my life, I am an outlaw unable to return to my native land except at the risk of being shot. Yet I have committed no crime unless it is a crime to fight for freedom-the kind of freedom all Americans enjoy and all true Cubans long to share.

Most men become revolutionaries because of an appetite for adventure, greed for power, or zeal for reform. A few like myself become revolutionaries by accident. Looking back, it hardly seems possible that only eight years ago I was a gay young pilot for Q Airways, commuting between Cuba and Florida, without a rebellious thought in my head.

My years since have been crowded with bloodshed, death, glory, terror, and bitterness. There were escapes that still make my nerves twang like violin strings. Then came our moment of triumph. And finally I faced Fidel Castro, a man to whom I had been devoted, with a cocked pistol ready to kill him.

But I am rushing ahead of my story. Let me go back to early 1952, when Dr. Carlos Prio was President of Cuba. Accidentally I learned that his rival, Fulgencio Batista, planned to take over the government. I passed on this information through my father, a career government employe. And on March 10, 1952, as I had warned, Batista seized the presidency.

When, later, I met Prio, he seemed genuinely penitent about the corruption in his administration and swore he would win back freedom for the Cuban people. He was so fervent that I left the interview a revolutionary dedicated to the same cause of liberty.

In those days it was common for airline pilots to smuggle nylons and Scotch into Cuba-something I never did. Now, however, I started bringing in rifles. After a year, someone whispered to Batista's secret police. They tortured and humiliated my father. Thenthey seized me for 10 days of cross-examination.

They lacked evidence to hold me, but it was only a matter of time until they would come after me again. In a makeshift disguise, I slipped off to Camaguey, registered at a hotel under a false name, and planned my escape to Haiti with a pilot friend who was going there to dust crops. One murky morning I hid out in the grass at the end of the heavily guarded airstrip, leaped aboard the plane as it was taxiing, and left my homeland behind,

Now a revolutionary, I went from Port au Prince to Miami. For the next two years, I worked as busboy and dishwasher. In those days, Fidel Castro was only a name to me. He had attacked the Army barracks at Santiago de Cuba on July 26, 1953. For his pains, he was languishing in a prison cell.

Slaughter of the innocents

When Batista granted amnesty to all political offenders in 1955; Castro was freed and I hurried home. I wanted nothing more than to resume my peaceful profession as a pilot.

But try as I might, I could not close my eyes to Batista's terror. For my own eyes witnessed Batista's police shoot down innocent victims. Personal friends were tortured and murdered. I myself was falsely accused of burning sugar cane and threatened with death. Anger boiled up inside me until at last I joined Castro's 26th of July movement and volunteered for undercover work.

My first orders were to sneak out of Cuba and ferry weapons to Castro's hide-out in the Sierra Maestra Mountains. No one with my background could hope to walk into a Cuban airport and catch a flight out of the country. I had to create a new personality.

First I borrowed a passport from Carlos Bustida, a sympathetic newspaperman from Ecuador. I had never visited Ecuador, but I became an expert on that country. I even learned to talk with an Ecuadorean accent and to forge Bastida's signature. Finally I donned a Panama hat, dark glasses, and a sports coat that seemed appropriate for a South American reporter. Then with Frank Fiorini, an American friend of the movement, I set out from Santiago to Camaguey.

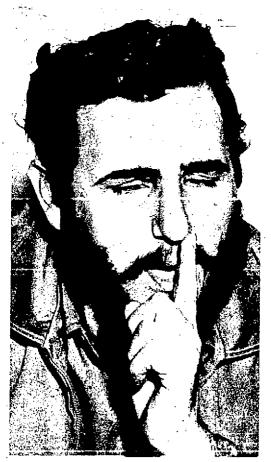

"What Are You Doing Here?"

To give the trip the appearance of an outing, we brought along a couple in the back-seat. Batista patrols stopped us 15 times and frisked us for weapons. But they politely left the girl alone; they never suspected that this giggling teenager carried a pistol strapped under her skirt.

At Camaguey, Frank and I made our ways separately to the airport. There I realized my dark glasses were arousing the suspicions of airport plainclothesmen. If I kept them on, I would invite an interrogation. If I took them off, I would risk recognition for I was known at every airport in Cuba. I could imagine some friend becoming out to me, "Pedro Luis, what are you doing here?"

The plainelothesmen started to approach. With calculated casualness although my heart was pounding, I removed the glasses, pulled off my hat for good measure, and strolled innocently around. The police lost interest. But right up to the moment the plane doors shut, I expected to be recognized.

From that time on, my work for the revolution was one narrow escape after another. From Miami I went to Costa Rica, where I picked up a C-46 loaded with rifles, mortars, and ammunition—and 12 recruits. (One of them was Hubert Matos, who was to become a famous Castro commander and to be rewarded after the revolution with command of Camaguey province—until he spoke out against Communists. Then he was sentenced to die as a traitor.) All were needed desperately by Castro, who was expecting a final assault on his hide-out.

I brought the Big cargo plane down on a dirt road at Cianeguilla, not far from Castro's headquarters, where guerrillas were waiting to unload. Some actually wept joyful tears at the sight of the ammunition arriving in the nick of time.

The road was so narrow that one prop whacked a fence post. I could neither repair the damage nor take off again before Batista's patrols spotted the plane. Regretfully, I splashed gasoline over the C-46 and set it aftre.

Then, with the rebel force, I marched into the mountains. There, on March 30, 1958, I had my first meeting with Fidel Castro. He was overflowing with excitement and hailed us as "the saviours of Cuba." At that time he had fewer than 400 men, with no ammunition except what we had brought. Castro spoke with fervor that night. If only his Tommy gun had been a staff, he might have passed for a bearded prophet crying in the wilderness. His personality had the glow of a torch.

A Miraculous Escape

I stayed in the mountains six weeks, fighting with the ground troops. Once I was caught in the open by a Batista F-47 fighter. Bullets kicked up the dust all around me, but miraculously I wasn't even scratched. When Fidel learned I was risking myself on the ground, he sent urgent orders that I should stay out of the fighting. He had less trouble recruiting soldiers, he complained, than finding trained pilots who could fly weapons into the rugged mountains of the islands.

Then our forces in the north captured a small, beatup plane. Its single engine was underpowered and badly in need of overhaul. The only navigational equipment was a compass, which turned out to be 45 degrees off. But this pitiful plane made up the entire rebel Air Force for some months until, for $5,000 down, I bought a little Cessna 180 in Miami.

This plane served as our arms airlift. Once, with only 300 pounds load limit to spare, I crammed aboard 1,000 pounds of rifles and ammunition. We were a sitting duck for patrols, but the only plane we saw overlooked us. Another time, after taking off out of a mountain canyon, I had a near-miss with a Batista frigate with antiaircraft guns. Still another time I was forced to make a storm emergency landing in the Everglades.

One of my missions was to fly weapons to Calabaza where Fidel's brother Raul was in charge of the second front. From the first, he impressed me as wild and unreliable. When he grumbled that Fidel was getting most of the arms, I retorted sharply: "I am not bringing weapons to you as an individual. I am bringing weapons to Cubans who are fighting dictatorship." Later a friend, who has my complete confidence, told me a submarine brought in a big haul of weapons for Raul. By the uniforms and language of the crew, my friend judged the vessel was Russian.

There were many flights in overloaded planes, many landings in the mountains at night without lights. But perhaps my narrowest escape came after I delivered the arms for Ernesto (Che) Guevara, whom I later found out was pro-Communist, to lead the famous attack on Santa Clara. I was forced to land in an area that Batista's patrols had under constant watch. A hundred waiting guerrillas grabbed the ammunition while I hurriedly poured gas into the wing tanks from five-gallon cans. Suddenly a Batista B-26 spotted us and dived down with guns blazing.

"Liberty or Death"

My helpers scattered into the jungle, leaving me alone in a hail of bullets. I stood on the wing screaming "Cowards!" until Faustino Perez, now in charge of confiscating Batista property, emerged with two others to help me camouflage the plane. Later 1 discovered a bullet had pierced the nose tank. One spark and the plane would have gone up like a bomb. Since we had to assume Batista troops would soon be on their way, 1 struck a match and once more watched a precious aircraft go up in flames.

On August 24, 1958, Fidel appointed me head of the rebel Air Force. My friends had the date inscribed on a watch that I still wear. Then, on New Year's Day 1959, just one year ago, came our triumph. Batista handed over the government and fled the country. I was in Costa Rico, picking up another load of weapons, when the exciting news came through. When Castro appointed me chief of the Cuban Air Force, he did so in a letter that ended with "Libertad O Muerte"—Liberty or Death.

My faith in Castro was first jolted after his triumphant entry into Havana. Throughout the long march, adoring Catholic women had pinned holy medals on him. I overheard Che Guevara tease him about the "decorations" he was wearing. "Listen," Fidel said, "we have to go slow. Most of our people are Catholic. We cannot condemn the Church right away. That is a power we cannot destroy so easily." It was the first anti-church statement I had heard from him.

My doubts grew when I accompanied him on his official visit to Venezuela. He put on a big act of not wanting to meet Venezuela's top Communist, Gustavo Machado. Yet he locked himself in a bathroom with Machado for two hours. It was the longest talk he held with anyone in Venezuela.

I complained to Fidel that his brother Raul had named Communists, who hadn't fired a shot in the revolution, as army commanders. Fidel replied earnestly: "I am going to have to dismiss Raul. I am not going to let the Communists take over."

But Fidel did not dismiss Raul. Instead he put him in charge of the armed forces and gave Che Guevara control of agrarian reform. My faith in Fidel was shaken. Having fought for free speech, I decided to put it to the test. But I was wise enough in the ways of revolutions to arrange with my brother Sergio Diaz Brull to have a hoat ready for a quick getaway. Then I issued a statement that I was ready to fight any dictatorship....Batista, Trujillo, or "the worst dictatorship in the world, communism."

The Cocked Pistol

This was the showdown. Juan Almeida, commander of a tank regiment, came with a message that Fidel wanted to see me at his home. I strapped on my pistol, slipped in a clip of 14 bullets, and removed the safety catch. When I faced Castro he erupted like a volcano. "Why should you make a statement against communism?" he demanded. "You will only confuse the people. You are not supposed to do anything without my consent. I am the one who tells you what to do and when."

Angrily I asked whether he had not become a dictator himself. Why should I not have freedom to express my opinions? I was against communism and stood by my convictions, I declared. "Remember," I said, "you did not win the revolution alone. You had my help and the help of other friends."

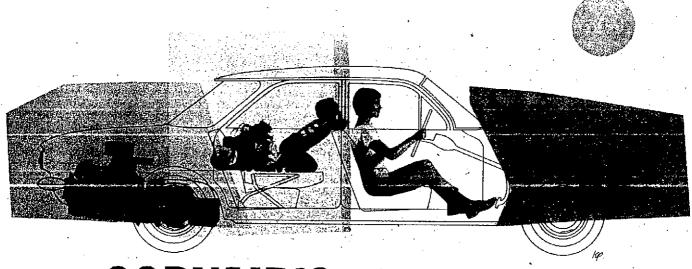

I warned fiercely that I would not accept arrest or go to jail for saying what I believed. To silence me he would have to kill me. "You will have to carry my body on your shoulders and explain what has happened," I said. "You will have to explain to the Cuban people why I have been killed after speaking against communism."

My hand was on my plstol, and I was ready to use it. Castro looked at me—and at my pistol—hard for a moment. He was far from sure whether the Cuban people would support him in any action against his Air Force chief for being anti-Communist. He backed far better traction—a practically flat floor—remarkable braking ability—feather-soft steering

CORVAIR'S REAR ENGINE

Corvair's rear engine sets off a chain reaction of benefits that no other compact car in America can offer.

You'll feel the effects just as soon as you pull away from the curls. With engine weight in the rear—where it belongs in a compact car—Corvair has the kind of traction that really takes a toehold. It can sprint and corner like a cow pony, cruise over ice, mud or snow with sure-footedness that will amaze you.

With the engine, transmission and drive gears packaged together, you also get the 6-passenger comfort of a virtually flat floor. There's room for everyone, front and rear, including the passengers in the middle.

And when it comes to stopping, Corvair's balanced four-wheel braking brings you to a halt as smartly as a Marine drill team with none of the nose-heaviness you find in front-engine compact cars.

You'll also notice the advantages of Corvair's weight distribution in the effortless way it steers. It's a joy to jockey through traffic, a pleasure to park. And with independent suspension at all four wheels—an advance as significant as the independent suspension of front wheels on full-size cars years ago—you get a poised, unruffled ride that rivals even the most expensive makes.

These are all things that would never have been possible if Chevrolet engineers had been content to make the Corvair merely a sawed-off version of a big car. And your dealer's waiting now with all the short, sweet details.

There's nothing like a new car-and no compact car like this deluxe Corvair 700.

In happier days, Diaz Lanz (r.) and Castro discuss air search for Raul Castro.

'I shall come back to my homeland' down. "You go home and wait," he growled. "I'll see what I am going to do with you later."

If I was to escape, I had to put them off balance, if only for a few hours. With an indifferent shrug I told Almeida I would write a letter of resignation. All I wanted from life, I said, was to go back to my old airline job. I said, "Tell Fidel I won't cause him any rouble and I don't want him to cause me any." Then I added as an afterthought: "Don't put any guards on my home or follow me around, interfering with my private life."

My ruse worked. For the next few hours I was unguarded. I got in touch with Sergio, prepared my resignation, and signed it. Then, with my wife Tania, I hurried to the dock. Fidel's men were watching the nirports, but apparently it never occurred to them that I might go to Miami by boat.

Yet in my heart I knew I would come back. I could not rest until the democracy I had fought to bring to Cuba had been realized.

In the U.S. I decided not to speak out immediately but to wait until events showed others that Castro was simply exchanging one form of dictatorship for another. But I was subpoenaed to testify before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee about my knowledge of communism in Cuba. As a guest in your country, I was obliged to tell what I knew of this matter.

For the next few weeks I avoided publicity as more and more people got a glimpse behind the beard at the real Castro. Then I tried to reach my people. Because Castro had denounced me as a traitor, I wrote a reply and sent it to every Cuban newspaper. Not a single one dared print it.

This was the reason I decided to be my own mailman. I had 200,000 copies of my letter printed and arranged to deliver them by air. Frank Fiorini, the American who had been with me through much of the revolution, owned a B-26 that had been converted to a civilian plane. The gun openings had been permanently scaled and the bomb bay fashioned into a makeshift luggage compartment.

On the afternoon of October 21, Frank and I roared off for Havana. The winds were at peace in the sky. Except for some vibration in the left engine, nothing happened to augur the international storm our flight was to stir up. We swooped low over the country, stuffing our leaflets through the baggage opening.

I learned afterward that Castro himself was caught in the leaflet blizzard. One copy fluttered right into his face. When he read the message, his whiskers trembled with rage.

My Message for Castro

After we were safely on our way back to Florida, Castro's soldiers shot one of their own B-26s full of holes. A light plane also was fired upon and its Chilean pilot wounded. Throughout Havana the falling shrapnel caused tragic casualties for which Castro chose to blame me rather than his own men.

I cannot tell how I know about events inside Cuba today. There are patriots who risk their lives to keep me informed. I have a final word for you who read this newspaper, whose democratic ideals and institutions are my inspiration. Whatever I must do in the future, I will take care not to violate any of your laws or your hospitality. Thank God, freedom of expression is no crime here.

If Fidel Castro should read this, I have a word, too, for him: I demonstrated to you many times that I was willing to die to restore democracy to Cuba. Be assured, I have not changed.

Don't worry yourself into NERVOUS CONSTIPATION

A serious chronic condition often starts with simple irregularity due to lack of bulk

Millions find gentle safe relief with Kellogg's All-Bran and milk

As you know, almost everyone has trouble with constipation at one time or another. But this ailment is particularly common among sensitive and intelligent people, the people who are especially vulnerable to the tensions of modern living.

Quite often these folks tend to lose appetite in times of stress or when they're under pressure. They just don't eat enough, or not enough of the right foods, and this leads to irregularity due to lack of bulk in the diet.

Of course, laxative drugs are almost useless in a case like this, because they contain no bulk. But fortunately, there is a natural way to gentle regularity. A safe, delicious way. The Kellogg's All-Bran way.

Kellogg's All-Bran, you see, is a whole bran cereal. And bran is nature's best bulk-forming food. So just half a cup of Kellogg's All-Bran with milk provides all of the good bulk food needed for consistent regularity. (Wonderful bran muffin flavor, and good nutrition, too.)

If you would like to try Kellogg's All-Bran, consider this offer. Enjoy this good-tasting cereal with milk each day for 10 days. Then, if you are not completely satisfied, and we mean satisfied in every way, return the empty carton. By return mail we will refund twice the money you paid—and that's a promise from Kellogg's of Battle Creek.

The new royal baby

Due to arrive soon, how will he (or she) fit into the British Queen's family circle?

by JACK ANDERSON

LONDON

TN FOUR OR FIVE WEEKS a handwritten A announcement, signed by the royal physician, will be posted on the railings outside Buckingham Palace. This will be the signal for bells to clang, guns to boom. grins to break out. In pubs and clubs across this nation, Britishers will rejoice, and the world will echo their jubilation.

For the longhand message will state simply that Her Most Excellent Majesty, Elizabeth II, has given birth to a baby, To the British people, any blessed event in the royal family is cause for joy, but the eagerly awaited newcomer has a special significance. He (or she) will be the first child born to a reigning monarch in 103 years. (The last: Queen Victoria's ninth child, Princess Beatrice, born in 1857.) Elizabeth's present pair arrived before she became Oucen.

Although ancient traditions still are followed, a royal birth today is much like any other in a well-to-do family. Queen Elizabeth (Lillibet to her family) is a sensible, matter-of-fact young woman who dislikes fuss. Of having babies, she says: "After all, it is what women are made for."

Britain's royal mothers have nearly all taken the same attitude. The prolific Victoria insisted upon following her royal routine virtually up to the last minute. She barely had time to cancel a dinner party before giving birth to Edward VII.

A Sellout Audience

Edward's wife, the slim, beautiful Alexandra, went even one better. Minutes before her first bahy arrived; she was ice skating with guests at Windsor Park. She tripped, sprawled across the ice, and was bundled off to the royal lodge. The infant was delivered by a local doctor with the aid of a lady-in-waiting who had to wrap the baby in her petticoat. There was no time to summon the royal physicians whose official presence was then required.

The custom of having official witnesses for royal births (now abandoned, to Elizabeth's relief) dated back to the 17th century when Mary of Modena, wife of King James II, quite unexpectedly gave birth to a son before 70 courtiers who crowded around the royal hed.

Despite the eyewitness audience, rumors spread that the baby had been smuggled into St. James's Palace in a warming pan. The prince grew up to be known as "The Old Pretender." Thereafter it became a rule that the Home Secretary and other Cabinet ministers should be present at all royal births.

Victoria's husband, Prince Albert, sought unsuccessfully to end what he considered a barbarous tradition. And when Princess Margaret was born, then-Home Secretary J.R. Clynes was kept pacing the floor of his room in Glamis Castle for a month. Someone had got the date wrong.

The archaic practice was dropped after Prince Charles' birth in 1948, so Elizabeth will have no witnesses for her new baby.

She will be attended simply by her obstetrician, Dr. John Peel, other royal doctors, and a midwife. Until the baby is born, she will receive normal, modern prenatal care of the best kind.

If the new arrival is a boy, he will rank second to Prince Charles in line of succession. If a girl, she will be third in line behind Princess Anne. (For the rest of the order of succession see hox below.)

Godfather lke?

There is no fixed place for the royal birth, but the stork likely will deliver the child either to Sandringham or Buckingham Palace. Since the Queen spends most Christmases at Sandringham she may stay on and have her baby in the country. She will remain in bcd 10 days after the birth.

The royal christening will be held in the parish church at Sandringham or in the Chapel Royal off the Strand, depending on the birth place. The christening waters will be brought from the River Jordan-a tradition dating back to the Crusaders.

month after birth) will the names of the royal child and his godparents be announced. Palace intimates believe President and Mrs. Eisenhower will be asked to be godparents. Although this sounds like an international entente in the old tradition, the families actually are very close, as the President's visits to Britain

The name most favored for a boy is Andrew after his paternal grandfather, Prince Andrew of Greece. If the infant is a girl, she probably will be named Mary after her great-grandmother, the late Queen Mary. But Charlotte also is a favorite name. Whichever is chosen, it will be used in full. The Queen dislikes net

Not until the christening (usually a

Legally, the baby will not be born a prince or princess. The child will rank as an ordinary commoner until the Oueen accords the royal style: His or Her Highness. Other titles will follow. A boy may be accorded the title "Duke of Ottawa" to further Britain's ties with Canada.

Like Prince Charles who collects $24,-000 a year from the state, the new baby will receive a government income. The Queen, who has big holdings of her own, probably will grant an additional $2,000 a vear.

Both Elizabeth and Philip have shown themselves determined to bring up their children as normally as possible with a minimum of protocol and publicity. Like Charles and Anne, the new baby will be reared in the simplest fashion: no personal servants beyond a nurse. As soon as he is old enough, he will graduate to the nursery suite in Buckingham Palace, now occupied by Charles and Anne.

Off to School

A private tutor will instruct the new Prince or Princess in the ABCs, plano, and dancing until the seventh birthday. Then, in the case of a boy, he will be sent off to school. Most likely, he'll follow Charles, who went to a private day school in Knightsbridge near the Palace. Now Charles is a boarder at Cheam Preparatory School in Surrey, where his father went before him.

When Charles was created the 21st Prince of Wales at the age of 10, he came in for some unprincely kidding from his schoolmates. Because of his tubbiness, they called him Prince of Whales and Prince of Porpoises. His father, who had taught him to box, reminded him in a quiet chat of his lessons. Charles started using his fists, and the teasing stopped.

If the new baby is a girl, she will follow the more cloistered life of Princess Anne, Anne takes her lessons in the Palace schoolroom with two little girls brought in from outside to teach her to share and to compete. She also has been taught to be independent. She could dress herself at 3, sew and write at 5. She has since been allowed to enroll in the Brownies and has learned to wash dishes.

Like her mother, Anne loves animals and has her own pony and Welsh Corgi dog. She enjoys watching her father play polo and wanders off in long rubber boots and corduroy slacks to help water his

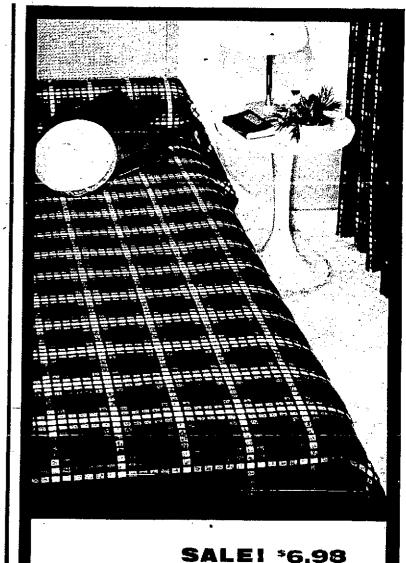

A baby girl, like Anne, will receive a pearl each birthday. She will wear them on a fine gold chain around her wrist until she is 18. Then the 18 pearls will be worn as a necklace. Both her mother and her Aunt Margaret received their pearl necklaces this way.

The New Year's celebration here was quiet compared to the commotion that will greet the announcement of Queen Elizabeth's new baby. The bells of St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey will toll their mighty voices. Twenty-one-gun salutes will be fired at 18 official saluting places at home and abroad. For good measure, the Honorable Artillery Company will fire 41-gun salutes in Hyde Park and at the grim old Tower of London-21 for the royal baby, 20 for the people. In the old days the people were allowed to fire their own guns but this practice became too dangerous.

And what will Prince Philip be doing? As any proud father, he will be telephoning the family, passing around cigars, and smiling that self-satisfied smile that is the badge of paternity the world over.

ITCHING ..

Famous formula counteracts "itching chemicals" in skin

Skin rashes, eczema, "detergent hands" can cause maddening itching. Doctors know this is caused by "itching chemicals" in the skin that irritate nerve endings.

Certain medications have the power to neutralize these "itching chemicals" for immediate relief.

Zemo-the prescription-like formula—contains such ingredients to soothe irritated nerves that cause itching, quieting and cooling the skin. Zemo also eases pain of cuts, scratches, minor burns. Liquid or ointment; regular or extra strength. Save most, get large sizes of Zemo.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bob Melvin of Long Island, N.Y., is that rare comedian who writes his own material. Tall, quick-witted, and thirtyish, Melvin wrote gags for Milton Berle and other top comedians before he decided to become a performer. Melvin has appeared at the Americana in Miami Beach, the Town Casino in Buffalo, the Sands in Las Vegas, The Copacabana in New York where he's won the acclaim of audiences by projecting warmth, naturalness, and joke routines derived from life. Fellow comedians consider him one of the "hottest" of the young comics; and only a few weeks ago Sammy Davis, Jr. signed him as a feature attraction of the Davis personal appearance act. Herewith some of Melvin's funnies:

THE OTHER DAY a friend of mine named Harry walked into a cigar store and said to the salesgirl, "I'd like to buy a carton of cig-

The salesgirl smiled, said, "There are so many brands. Which one would you like?"

My friend, Harry, thought for a moment, then mentioned a particular brand, whereupon the following conversation took place.

Salesgirl: Do you want the soft pack or the crush-proof box?

Harry: Soft-pack.

Salesgirl: King-size or regular?

Harry: King-size.

Salesgirl: Filter-tip or plain?

Harry: Filter-tip.

Harry: Menthol.

Girl: Cash or carry? Harry: Forget it . . . I've broken the habit. THE RUSSIANS brag how they've taken photos of the back of the moon. Well, they finally developed their pictures, and it's definite . . . Hilton is building there.
